CZECHOSLOVAKIA AND COUNTER-REVOLUTION WHY THE SOCIALIST COUNTRIES INTERVENED

by Herbert Aptheker

INTRODUCTION

"Why did the Russians do it?" ask the editors of the New Republic (August 31), having reference to the entry of Warsaw Pact troops in Czechoslovakia. They answer: "Apparently they had become fearful of shadows"; they suffer from "neurosthenia." In a word, they lack the sanity and courage of the New Republic board.

Mr. Solzberger of the New York Times (October 13) has another diagnosis for the psychosomatic illness plaguing "the Kremlin neurotics." They are afflicted, says this eminent biologist and psychiatrist, with something called—in a recent bestseller—"the territorial imperative" which "may sometimes derive from remote instincts first noted among wolves, horned owls or lions patrolling their preserves."

In a pinch for money—"defensible for income tax purposes"—the International Revenue Committee is less subtle in explaining "the Soviet Union's rape of Czechoslovakia"; within a one-page letter it four times reiterates that the money lay in "Soviet tyrannies." The opponents of "tyranny" include Lee Harvey, who has been pleading for World War III ever since the Spring of 1945, Angier Biddle Duke of the Pennsylvania Biddies and the North Carolina Dukes, Nicholas D. Biddle of the Pennsylvania Biddies, Thomas J. Dodd, the influence-peddler and fire-burner of the U.S. Senate, Samuel Goldwyn of the Hollywood emulans, Mrs. Clare Booth Luce of the Time-Life-Fortune freedom-fighters, General Carl Spaatz of the B-32 Liberators, and Charles W. Engelhard, who owns more gold and diamonds in that model of democracy, the Republic of South Africa, than any other single human being.

Others—with better credentials as to their concern for human well-being—have also expressed unqualified denunciation of the act of the Warsaw Pact Powers. I. F. Stone, for example, in his Weekly (August 5) writes: "The Combs stood alone in 1935 against German imperialism. Today they stand alone against Russian imperialism." The press is symmetrical, but is it accurate?

MUNICH: THEN AND NOW

Did the Czechs (and the Slovaks, Mr. Stone) stand alone against Hitler in 1938? The answer is no and Mr. Stone knows it but in his excitement forgot it. Czechoslovakia stood in the middle of a defensive alliance involving France and the Soviet Union, which alliance was to be collectively implemented whenever one of the three parties faced aggression. France (and Great Britain and the United States) let Czechoslovakia know that it (and they) would not assist her if she offered any resistance to Hitler's and Mussolini's appetites. Indeed, those "democracies" told Czechoslovakia that if she did resist these appetites, they—the democracies—would hold Czechoslovakia responsible should war ensue! There was only one Power which stood by Czechoslovakia and that was the Soviet Union. It affirmed to Russia that if Czechoslovakia resisted Hitler—whether or not France came to its assistance—the Soviet Union would come to the aid of Czechoslovakia. This offer was turned down by Russia, who—true to his basic class position when the final moment of decision arrived—preferred the embrace of fascism rather than the assistance of socialism.

Of course, the purpose of Munich was to throw the industrial and geographical prize of Czechoslovakia to Hitler the better for the latter to carry through his announced purpose of destroying the USSR—which is why the Dukes and Biddies of the "democratic West" had created, financed and furnished Hitler in the first place. The Soviet Union had a few diplomatic and military surprises in store for all of these gentlemen, as it has had since and—apparently—still does.

It was because the USSR was socialist and not imperialist that she alone took the stand she did vis-a-vis Munich, and it was that socialist base that determined her superb defense against Hitler and the combined might of Europe. Despite over twenty million Soviet citizens and which kept them backward"—they all have emerged, as socialist states, with infinitely enhanced national sovereignty as well as popular well-being. And the German Democratic Republic, that section of Germany which in the past was the most backward and most junker-ridden, is now a land free of the junker, purged of militarism, capitalism and fascism. Indeed, while socialism is of course an unprecedented condition for all these peoples and states—wherefore great and often unexpected problems and difficulties are bound to arise—the generally advanced urban and industrial levels of these areas and their enhanced national consciousness likewise represent unprecedented conditions bound to induce new and difficult problems. Far from repeating the mistakes of the former and Russian imperialism, it is the dominance of the former and the disappearance of the latter which are among the basic forces in both the great achievements and the great challenges in Central and Eastern Europe.

VIETNAM AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA

In the New York Times advertisement on the Czechoslovak events, placed under the initiative of Stewart Moulthrop of the American Friends Service Committee and Dave Dellinger of the magazine Liberation, one reads that Soviet claims of concern about preserving socialism in Czechoslovakia are as false as U.S. claims about saving freedom in Vietnam. "In both instances," says the ad, "the true reason for the use of military force has nothing to do either with socialism or freedom but geo-political purposes."

"Geo-political purposes," however, need not be contrary to concerns about both freedom and socialism. The geo-political purposes of the United States in Vietnam are: to crush colonial and national liberation movements, to enhance the commercial and military position of
