Disclosing Spaces On Painting:

Disclosing Spaces Andrew Benjamin, 2004 In recent decades the proliferation of art practices has left behind the critical frameworks needed to understand and appraise art In Disclosing Spaces Andrew Benjamin diagnoses and addresses this failure in terms of the role of criticism itself proposing a realignment of the relationship between painting and criticism at a fundamental level Broaching the idea that Paintings are not examples not even of paintings the consequences are played out against modern art theory in a uniquely philosophical way An individual art work cannot be seen in any straightforward way as a particular of an established universal that we might call art painting is not reducible to a determined form Rather maintains Benjamin painting evolves and encounters new territory through the constant tension of the work that constitutes the art and the work of criticism What follows is a renewal of the terms of criticism which draws on the philosophical Immanuel Kant Walter Benjamin and the art theoretical Arthur Danto Rosalind Krauss alike Throughout the argument is funneled through detailed treatment of an eclectic range of works classical modern and postmodern This intriguing and persuasive book is illustrated with the works under consideration and will serve as a valuable new vantage point for students and teachers of art art history or aesthetic philosophy Publisher description Digital Media and Technologies for Virtual Artistic Spaces Harrison, Dew, 2013-02-28 Emerging new technologies such as digital media have helped artists to position art into the everyday lives and activities of the public These new virtual spaces allow artists to utilize a more participatory experience with their audience Digital Media and Technologies for Virtual Artistic Spaces brings together a variety of artistic practices in virtual spaces and the interest in variable media and online platforms for creative interplay Presenting frameworks and examples of current practices this book is useful for artists theorists curators as well as researchers working with new technologies social media platforms and digital culture Photography and Its Violations John

Roberts, 2014-09-30 Theorists critique photography for objectifying its subjects and manipulating appearance for the sake of art In this bold counterargument John Roberts recasts photography's violating powers and aesthetic technique as part of a complex social ontology that exposes the hierarchies divisions and exclusions behind appearances Photography must arrive unannounced and get in the way of the world Roberts argues committing to the truth claims of the spectator over the self interests and sensitivities of the subject Yet even though the violating capacity of the photograph results from external power relations the photographer is still faced with an ethical choice whether to advance photography's truth claims on the basis of these powers or to diminish or veil these powers to protect the integrity of the subject Photography's acts of intrusion and destabilization constantly test the photographer at the point of production in the darkroom and at the computer especially in our 24 hour digital image culture Roberts's refunctioning of photography's place in the world is therefore critically game changing as it politically and theoretically restores the reputation of the art Handbook of Research on Digital Media and Creative Technologies Harrison, Dew, 2015-03-31 Emerging technologies enable a wide variety of creative expression from music and video to innovations in visual art. These aesthetics when properly explored can enable enhanced communication between all kinds of people and cultures. The Handbook of Research on Digital Media and Creative Technologies considers the latest research in education, communication, and creative social expression using digital technologies. By exploring advances in art and culture across national and sociological borders, this handbook serves to provide artists, theorists, information communication specialists, and researchers with the tools they need to effectively disseminate their ideas across the digital plane.

Expanded Painting Mark Titmarsh, 2017-08-24. The relevance of painting has been questioned many times over the last century by the arrival of photography, installation art, and digital technologies. But rather than accept the death of painting, Mark Titmarsh traces a paradoxical interface between this art form and its opposing forces to define a new practice known as expanded painting, giving the term historical context, theoretical structure, and an important place in contemporary practice. As the formal boundaries tumble, the being of painting expands to become a kind of total art incorporating all other media, including sculpture, video, and performance. Painting is considered from three different perspectives: ethnology, art theory, and ontology. From an ethnological point of view, painting is one of any number of activities that takes place within a culture. In art theory terms, painting is understood to produce objects of interest for humanities disciplines. Yet painting as a medium often challenges both its object and image status, expanding and creating hybrid works between painting, objects, screen media, and text. Ontologically, painting is understood as an object of aesthetic discourse that in turn reflects historical states of being. Thus, Expanded Painting delivers a new kind of saying, a post-aesthetic discourse that is attuned to an uncanny tension between the presence and absence of painting.

Practising with Deleuze Suzie Attiwill, 2018-07-31. First ever book-length study of Scotland's immigrant communities since 1945.

Philippe Grandrieux Greg Hainge, 2017-02-23. Philippe Grandrieux is one of cinema's only living true radicals and feted as one of the most innovative and important film makers of his generation. His consistently controversial work remains, however, relatively unknown outside of the international art film festival circuit. In this volume, the first book-length study of the work of Grandrieux in any language, Greg Hainge provides an overview and critical analysis of Grandrieux's entire career during which he has produced works for television, video, installations, photography, performance, pieces, documentary films, short films, and prize-winning feature films. As well as providing an overview, the book argues that a critical appraisal of his work necessarily leads us to problematize many of the critical orthodoxies that have been formed in recent times to reject the concept of a haptic cinema and to supplant this instead with the idea of a sonic cinema.

Walter Benjamin and Art Andrew Benjamin, 2005-03-18. Walter Benjamin's most famous and influential essay remains The Work of Art in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction. Walter Benjamin and the Work of Art is the first book to provide a broad and dedicated analysis of this canonical work and its effect upon core contemporary concerns in the visual arts, aesthetics, and the history of philosophy. The book is structured around three distinct areas: the extension of Benjamin's work the question of historical connection the importance of the essay in the development of criticism of both the visual arts and literature Contributors to the volume include major Benjamin commentators whose work has very much defined the reception of the essay and leading philosophers historians and aestheticians whose approaches open up new areas of interest and relevance

Paradoxes of Appearing Michael Asgaard Andersen, Henrik Oxvig, 2009 The book contains a collection of essays by scholars and artists from a range of different fields including art art history architectural theory and philosophy The essays are based on papers given at a symposium in Copenhagen in June 2008 and refer to the following considerations When spectators confront and designers invent works of art and architecture vital questions regarding their appearance arise Based on multiple discourses on these subjects contemporary positions in art architecture and philosophy draw up new challenges especially with regard to the creative practices Within and between these positions emerge potentials for modes of thinking and doing with a new sensitivity Contributors include Michael Asgaard Andersen and Henrik Oxvig Renaud Barbaras Andrew Benjamin Olafur Eliasson Sanford Kwinter David Leatherbarrow Martin Seel David Summers and Sven Olov Wallenstein
