Orientalism and the Figure of the Jew Jeffrey S. Librett,2014-11-03 Orientalism and the Figure of the Jew proposes a new way of understanding modern Orientalism Tracing a path of modern Orientalist thought in German across crucial writings from the late eighteenth to the mid twentieth centuries Librett argues that Orientalism and anti Judaism are inextricably entangled Librett suggests further that the Western assertion of material power in terms of which Orientalism is often read is overdetermined by a spiritual weakness an anxiety about the absence of absolute foundations and values that coincides with Western modernity itself The modern West he shows posits an Oriental origin as a fetish to fill the absent place of lacking foundations This fetish is appropriated as Western through a quasi secularized application of Christian typology Further the Western appropriation of the good Orient always leaves behind the remainder of the bad inassimilable Orient The book traces variations on this theme through historicist and idealist texts of the nineteenth century and then shows how high modernists like Buber Kafka Mann and Freud place this historicist narrative in question The book concludes with the outlines of a cultural historiography that would distance itself from the metaphysics of historicism confronting instead its underlying anxieties

First Lessons in Geography Matthew Fontaine Maury,1878 The Worlds of Christopher Columbus William D. Phillips,Carla Rahn Phillips,1992 When Columbus was born in the mid fifteenth century Europe was largely isolated from the rest of the Old World Africa and Asia and ignorant of the existence of the world of the Western Hemisphere The voyages of Christopher Columbus opened a period of European exploration and empire building that breached the boundaries of those isolated worlds and changed the course of human history This book describes the life and times of Christopher Columbus on the 500th anniversary of his first voyage across the Atlantic Ocean in 1492. Since ancient times Europeans had dreamed of discovering new routes to the untold riches of Asia and the Far East, what set Columbus apart from these explorers was his single-minded dedication to finding official support to make that dream a reality. More than a simple description of the man, this new book places Columbus in a very broad context of European and world history. Columbus's story is not just the story of one man's rise and fall. Seen in its broader context, his life becomes a prism reflecting the broad range of human experience for the past five hundred years. Respected historians of medieval Spain and early America, the authors examine Columbus's quest for funds, first in Portugal and then in Spain, where he finally won royal backing for his scheme. Through his successful voyage in 1492 and three subsequent journeys to the new world, Columbus reached the pinnacle of fame and wealth, and yet he eventually lost royal support through his own failings. William and Carla Rahn Phillips discuss the reasons for this fall and describe the empire created by the Spaniards in the lands across the ocean, even though neither they nor anyone else in Europe knew precisely where or what those lands were. In examining the birth of a new world, this book reveals much about the times that produced these intrepid explorers.

The Discovery and Conquest of the New World: Containing the Life and Voyages of Christopher Columbus (Classic Reprint) Washington Irving, 2018-04-26

Excerpt from The Discovery and Conquest of the New World: Containing the Life and Voyages of Christopher Columbus. Entering upon what would naturally be supposed a most arduous undertaking, the preparation of this Introduction I became aware of the fact that the magnitude of the subject, the exalted unquestioned position of Washington Irving, which had seemed to present insurmountable difficulties, actually facilitated the accomplishment of the object of my efforts. A very pigmy may introduce a giant; the faintest streak of light in the east is sufficient to herald the coming of the orb of day. The untutored wandering Arab of the Desert, the unlettered mariner of the deep, can with unfailing accuracy point out the grand constellations of the heavens. The existence of vast superiority in any of the creations of God obviates the necessity of introduction; the natural appreciation in mankind of that towering above or surpassing all surrounding objects of like kind makes introduction supererogatory.
