Discursive Practices And Linguistic Meanings:

Discursive Practices and Linguistic Meanings Hy V. Luong, 1990-01-01 This is a theoretically oriented study of the pragmatics of Vietnamese person reference kinship terms personal pronouns naming set and status terms Drawing upon linguistic data from a radically different non Western society and the seminal insights of Volosinov Bakhtin and Leach it offers a critical analysis of the major theoretical premises of dominant approaches to denotation and connotation to knowledge of language and to knowledge of the world The study suggests that the pragmatic presuppositions of Vietnamese person referring forms figure in the native definitions of linguistic meanings as prominently as any denotative features It is argued that the significance of pragmatic implications should be analyzed in relation to the native speaker's conception of the world Discursive Practices and Linguistic Meanings, 1990 Critical Literacy Maxine Greene, 1993-03-18 Illustrates the differences and similarities between modernist and postmodernist theories of literacy and suggests how the best elements of both can be fused to provide a more rigorous conception of literacy that will bring theoretical ethical political and practical benefits Some of the 14 essays are theoretical other present case studies of literacy programs for adults and other applications Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR The Language of Politics Michael L. Geis, 2012-12-06 This study is the second of two I have done concerning how language is used to persuade others to believe things and to do things The first published by Academic Press was The Language of Television Advertising and was concerned with how advertisers use language in their efforts to sell products and services and how consumers could be expected to understand it In this study the focus is on how politicians use language to win elections and get others to accept their policies and programs and on how journalists report the suasive efforts of politicians I combine an interest in the language of political reporting with an interest in the language of politics for a number of reasons First much of the suasive rhetoric of politicians is filtered through the minds of political journalists before it reaches the citizenry and we can be reasonably sure that this rhetoric does not come out the way it went in Second the press plays a significant role in determining the nation's political agenda through its choices of what issues will be presented to the public how these issues will be presented and which voices will be heard speaking out on these issues Third political reporting can be suasive in effect if not in intent and it will be useful I think to understand how this is so Brandom Ronald Loeffler, 2018-03-16 Robert Brandom is one of the most renowned contemporary American philosophers discussed widely in analytic as well as continental philosophical communities on both sides of the Atlantic His innovative approach to language and rationality combines the philosophies of language and mind epistemology metaphysics and logic with intriguing interpretations of historical figures such as Kant Hegel and Wittgenstein Yet due to its boldly unorthodox and highly technical nature Brandom's work can also be daunting for the beginner In this accessible book Ronald Loeffler provides a critical and clear headed guide through the maze of Brandom's philosophy He conveys the pioneering nature of Brandom's approach to language and communication with its unabashed appropriation of the German Idealistic tradition and offers focused sure footed introductions to all major aspects of Brandom's thought including his normative pragmatics and inferential role semantics and his theories of empirical knowledge logic linguistic representation and objectivity This book will be essential reading for students of philosophy as well as those in related fields with interests in language communication and the nature of norm governed social interaction Discursive Practice in Language Learning and Teaching Richard Young, 2009-03-16

Discursive Practice is a theory of the linguistic and socio cultural characteristics of recurring episodes of face to face interaction episodes that have social and cultural significance to a community of speakers This book examines the discursive practice approach to language in interaction explicating the consequences of grounding language use and language learning in a view of social realities as discursively constructed of meanings as negotiated through interaction of the context bound nature of discourse and of discourse as social action The book also addresses how participants abilities in a specific discursive practice may be learned taught and assessed The Politics of Vietnamese Romanticism and Literary

History Ben Vu Tran, 2008 Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts, 2006 For the Learning of Mathematics, 2007 Selected Papers of the International Pragmatics Conference, Antwerp, August 17-22, 1987: Levels of linguistic adaptation Jef Verschueren, Jan Blommaert, 1991 This volume comprises the second part of selected papers of the International Pragmatics Conference in Antwerp August 1987 Speaking from Elsewhere José Medina, 2007-06-01 In Speaking from Elsewhere author Jose Medina argues for the critical and transformative power of speech from marginalized locations by articulating a contextualist view of meaning identity and agency This contextualism draws from different philosophical traditions Wittgenstein pragmatism and feminist theory and crosses disciplinary boundaries philosophy cultural studies women's studies and sociology to underscore both the diversity of voices and viewpoints and the openness of discursive contexts and practices Expressing a robust notion of discursive responsibility Medina contends that as speakers and members of linguistic communities we cannot elude the obligation to open up discursive spaces for new voices and to facilitate new dialogues that break silences and empower marginalized voices The Social Semiotics of Relational

Terminology at Zuni Pueblo Linda Kay Watts, 2000 The author conducted ethnolinguistic fieldwork at Zuni Pueblo New Mexico focused on the folk semantics linguistic composition and reported situational use of Zuni relational terminology A social semiotic analysis relates these ethnolinguistic data to a revisionist cultural model of Zuni social organization
