Civilization and Disease Henry Ernest Sigerist, 1965 Cancer: disease of civilization? Vilhjalmur Stefansson, 2020-12-24 Vilhjalmur Stefansson has had the extraordinary privilege and the rare merit to know intimately certain segments of the world which will always be strange to most of us He has had the alertness to note details to make correlations which would have escaped others He has been unhampered by professional or even by lay prejudices And he has a gift for expressing the ideas which his observations have evoked The story which he presents in this book is a fascinating one Here is the sort of thing we call basic research just as much so as if it were being conducted in the latest of laboratories Here are the data from a series of experiments which Nature has performed for us in the Arctic northland in the tropic forests of Gabon and in the temperate valley of Hunzaland She has varied a series of environmental factors yet come up with a like result in the three places and a result which she has produced so far as we know only in those three special combinations of environments not in any other of her myriads of combinations elsewhere What have these three in common that they produce this result so important to us Nature will not repeat those experiments And we will not have another Stefansson to read the data and present them to us I hope therefore that what he has to say will be read carefully and pondered deeply

With observations on the origin and nature of nervous force Hugh CAMPBELL (M.D.), 1875 The Diseases of Civilization Brian Inglis, 1983 Poetization of Illness Dongyao Liu, 2025-11-01 This book draws on historical sources and current research findings skillfully integrating theory and text analysis Through the examination of specific works it discusses the aesthetic construction and conceptual transformation of discourses on illness The book closely links historical contexts and arrives at compelling conclusions through astute analysis and interpretation of the texts offering significant academic value The writing is lively yet precise demonstrating a solid methodological foundation a broad theoretical perspective and the author s ability to grasp complex subjects The Eugenics Review , 1921 The University of Chicago Magazine , 1926 The Service of Medicine to Civilization Victor Clarence Vaughan, 1914 Canadian Practitioner , 1924 Opportunity , 1930
