Coping With Faculty Stress:

Coping with Faculty Stress Walter H. Gmelch, 1993-08-24 This useful book outlines the chief forms and major causes of academic stress Practical advice shows how to distinguish negative from positive stress and how to deal with negative stressors in life and at work The book includes exercises to help the academic understand how stress affects him or her as well as forms to help design programmes for coping with stress Coping with Faculty Stress Peter Seldin, 1987

Faculty Stress David R. Buckholdt, Gale E. Miller, 2013-09-13 Contrary to popular opinion college and university faculty often experience a greater amount of stress than professionals in many other occupations Faculty Stress takes a comprehensive look at faculty stress its causes and its consequences This unique book explores the wide range of factors associated with work related stress the sources and perceptions of stress in differing academic environments and the importance of gender factors in understanding and dealing with work stress in academia Respected authorities discuss quantitative and qualitative research case studies and provide helpful policy recommendations As higher education rapidly changes the importance of understanding and effectively dealing with the stress that faculty endures increases Faculty Stress explores in detail how change affects work and personal lives of faculty This revealing book is crucial for current faculty and administrators who want to understand and effectively deal with stress as well as future faculty who need to know how to better prepare for the rigors of their college and university academic profession Faculty Stress is a valuable resource for faculty higher education administrators graduate students who intend to become faculty librarians higher education scholars and scholars who study work and occupations This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Human Behavior in the Social Environment Interactive Study of Stress, Strain and Coping on Faculty Administrators and Support Staff at a Mid-western University R. Paul Sullivan, 1991 Coping Strategies of College Faculty Experiencing Stress and Burnout at Work Rachel R. Janczak, 2017 The purpose of this study was to determine how faculty s coping strategies were related to recovery from stressors at work This study aimed to determine if available resources help them cope with the stress they experience at work and whether such coping strategies were negatively related to burnout from the profession It was predicted that the fewer resources faculty had available to use towards coping with their stress the more stress they would experience which was expected to relate to more burnout symptoms Faculty at two different public universities were invited to complete questionnaires including the Conservation of Resources Evaluation Perceived Stress Scale the brief COPE Inventory and the Burnout Measure Short Version This study was an extension of prior work on stress coping and burnout in the workplace done in a K 12 context The major question here was if findings would hold among university faculty working in the United States A sample of 58 participants from UW Stout and 14 participants from MNSU were collected Correlation and regression analyses did not reveal support for the predictions Implications and future research are discussed

Understanding Teacher Stress in an Age of Accountability Richard Lambert, Christopher McCarthy, 2006-03-01 School districts today face increasing calls for accountability during a time when budgets are stretched and students needs have become increasingly complex The teacher s responsibility is to educate younger people but now more than ever teachers face demands on a variety of fronts In addition to teaching academic content schools are responsible for students performance on state wide tests They are also asked to play an increasingly larger role in children s well being including their nutritional needs and social and emotional welfare Teachers have shown themselves to be more than capable of taking up such challenges but what price is paid for the increasing demands we are placing on our schools Understanding Teacher Stress in an Age of Accountability is about the nature of teachers stress and the resources they can employ to cope with it Accountability is a two way street and the authors in this volume suggest remedies for reducing teacher stress and in all likelihood increasing student learning greater administrative support more and better instructional materials specialized resources targeted at demanding children parental support and professional recognition Readers will discover that lack of funding low pay concerns about academic performance and student misbehavior and increased public and governmental scrutiny are not exclusive to the United States In this volume the third in a series on Research on Stress and Coping in Education authors from Australia Turkey Malaysia and the Netherlands sound the same alarms post the same warnings and draw similarly disturbing conclusions

Stress in Teachers Jack Dunham, Ved Prakash Varma, 1998-08-10 Examines the stress in teaching multidisciplinary concept broad enough to include physiological psychological organisational and legal perspectives The editors see stress in teaching as an interactionist concept a complex and sometimes precarious balance between perceived work pressures coping strategies and stress reactions The early chapters in the book reflect this view and make contributions to understanding the causes and costs of stress in teaching The authors of these chapters come collectively to the conclusion that there is an alarmingly low level of job satisfaction in teaching and that turnover intentions appear to be on the increase. This pessimistic view is challenged in later chapters by professionals working in the field of stress management. These contributions highlight the danger of focusing stress research and management strategies on the individual rather than the organization and report the authors' hands-on knowledge of teacher support teams and workshop and whole school approaches to diminishing the causes and costs of teacher stress and improving training and career development. The concluding chapters demonstrate the editors' belief that useful insights for workers in the education service can be gained from studies of workplace stress in other occupations.

Resources in Education, 1984 Stress-busting for Teachers Chris Kyriacou, 2000 Drawing on his experience of research and many stress busting workshops he has run for teachers the author of this book explains the nature and source of stress how to prevent stress a range of direct action and palliative coping strategies and what successful schools do to minimize stress on their staff. It aims to be the key to defeating teacher stress.
