Coping With Cancer Stress

Jean M. Ackerman, Twila M. Hagan

Coping With Cancer Stress:

Coping with Cancer Stress B.A. Stoll, 1986-10-31 The emotional pressures on cancer patients and their families are increasing and traditional supports are decreasing This book attempts to provide a readable authoritative and balanced review of the emotional pressures and coping methods of cancer patients and the help currently available to them The special problems of children and terminal patients with cancer and the role of the family in coping are also examined A balanced and critical assessment is made of defects in health organisation training of personnel and attitudes to cancer patients in Western society A similar assessment is made of the growing tendency to self help mutual help and group activities for such patients While each individual needs to select coping aids best suited to his or her own temperament medical advisors need to make more time available for discussion of technical emotional social and sexual problems The availability of a cancer treating team makes this feasible Chapters were invited from physicians psychiatrists psychologists and sociologists expert in this field and they have responded to the challenge of writing in non technical language This is so that readership can cross disciplinary boundaries and thus stimulate physicians nurses psychologists sociologists clergy and others to satisfy some of the currently unmet needs of cancer patients The reader may note a small amount of overlap between some chapters permitted in order to maintain continuity and make each chapter complete in itself

Coping with Cancer Stress Basil A. Stoll, 1986

Stress and Coping in Nursing Roy D. Bailey, Margaret Clarke, 2013-11-11 Increasingly stress as a concept is being used as an explanation of a wide variety of negative phenomena which are experienced by all people but which include nurses in particular and their patients Nursing has been identified as a high stress profession and one can hardly pick up a nursing journal or even read a newspaper article about nursing without finding the word stress used liberally Examples of its use are found in relation to sickness absence rates high level of nursing staff turnover discontent in nursing the effects of unemployment the effects of overwork having too much responsibility having too little responsibility or control the effects of constantly giving emotionally to others the causes of illness the effects of going into hospital delayed healing anxiety depression and alcoholism Given the heterogeneous nature of these phenomena some of which are the diametric opposite of others and that they are clearly being attributed to the one concept stress then that concept must necessarily be of importance within people's lives Or is it perhaps just a fashionable global but ultimately empty explanation Roy Bailey and I believe that stress is an extremely important concept Indeed we would argue that it is a meta concept rather than a concept which does indeed serve to explain many disparate phenomena
