Capital Structure and Corporate Financing Decisions H. Kent Baker, Gerald S. Martin, 2011-05-03 A comprehensive guide to making better capital structure and corporate financing decisions in today's dynamic business environment. Given the dramatic changes that have recently occurred in the economy, the topic of capital structure and corporate financing decisions is critically important. The fact is that firms need to constantly revisit their portfolio of debt, equity, and hybrid securities to finance assets, operations, and future growth. Capital Structure and Corporate Financing Decisions provides an in-depth examination of critical capital structure topics, including discussions of basic capital structure components, key theories, and practices, and practical application in an increasingly complex corporate world. Throughout the book, it emphasizes how a sound capital structure simultaneously minimizes the firm's cost of capital and maximizes the value to shareholders. It offers a strategic focus that allows you to understand how financing decisions relate to a firm's overall corporate policy. Consists of contributed chapters from both academics and experienced professionals, offering a variety of perspectives and a rich interplay of ideas. Contains information from survey research describing actual financial practices of firms. This valuable resource takes a practical approach to capital structure by discussing why various theories make sense and how firms use them to solve problems and create wealth. In the wake of the recent financial crisis, the insights found here are essential to excelling in today's volatile business environment.

Corporate Financing Decisions when Investors Take the Path of Least Resistance Malcolm Baker, Joshua Coval, Jeremy C. Stein, 2004 We explore the consequences for corporate financial policy that arise when investors exhibit inertial behavior. One implication of investor inertia is that all else equal, a firm pursuing a strategy of equity-financed growth will prefer a stock-for-stock merger to greenfield investment financed with an SEO. With a merger, acquirer stock is placed in the hands of investors who, because of inertia, do not resell it all on the open market. If there is downward sloping demand for acquirer shares, this leads to less price pressure than an SEO and cheaper equity financing as a result. We develop a simple model to illustrate this idea and present supporting empirical evidence. Both individual and institutional investors tend to hang on to shares granted them in mergers, with this tendency being much stronger for individuals. Consistent with the model and with this cross-sectional pattern, inertia, acquirers targeting firms with high institutional ownership, experience more negative announcement effects and greater announcement volume. Moreover, the results are strongest when the overlap in target and acquirer institutional ownership is low and when the demand curve for the acquirer's shares appears to be steep.
