Salutation,

This letter illustrates the recommended typing standards for LaGrange College stationery. The date line is aligned with the inside edge of the clock tower in the LaGrange logo and is positioned 2" from the top of the page. (This space can be expanded only in the case of very brief letters. In such cases, the subsequent spacing guidelines must still be followed.) The left margin is 1"; the right margin is .75". All information, including paragraphs and the closing, is aligned along the left margin. Text along the right margin should fall as it may, or "ragged right." The text should not be right-justified. We have chosen Times Roman as the typeface for correspondence. It is a standard font for most laser printers. We have set the font to be 11 point type on 14 points of leading. This size and style allow for placing a significant amount of text on the page with a high degree of legibility.

One line space

paragraphs

The addressee's name, title, and address begin one line below the date line. The salutation appears two line spaces below the last line of the address. The letter itself begins one line below the salutation. Lines within paragraphs are single-spaced; double-spacing is recommended between paragraphs. Paragraphs are not indented.

One line space

The complimentary closing should be placed one line below the end of the body of the letter, and the sender's name and title appear three line spaces below this (the sender's name and title are not typed on personalized stationery). Sender and typist's initials are placed one line below the sender's title. Information concerning enclosures, copies, etcetera is placed two lines below the initials and is single spaced.

Correspondence Models Of Letter Writing

Robert Tietz, Elaine Tietz

Correspondence Models Of Letter Writing:

Correspondence Roger Chartier, Alain Boureau, Cécile Dauphin, 1997 In this book Roger Chartier and his associates explore the history of a cultural practice that has become common and widespread the writing of letters They begin by examining the invention of norms for writing letters in the Middle Ages and the fixing of these norms in popular manuals of various kinds They then analyse the letter writing models developed in the ancien regime showing how these models were linked to court literature on the one hand and to the popular books distributed by pedlars on the other Finally they discuss the models of letter writing developed during the nineteenth century The nineteenth century they argue was a decisive period in the history of letter writing partly because of the rapid rise in rates of literacy and partly due to broader social and economic transformations which increased the need for writing letters By exploring the ways in which practices of letter writing have changed over the centuries this path breaking book sheds light on an everyday cultural practice which has created new ways of thinking of feeling and of relating to others as well as to oneself Letter Writing as a Social

Practice David Barton, Nigel Hall, 2000 This book explores the social significance of letter writing Letter writing is one of the most pervasive literate activities in human societies crossing formal and informal contexts Letters are a common text type appearing in a wide variety of forms in most domains of life More broadly the importance of letter writing can be seen in that the phenomenon has been widespread historically being one of earliest forms of writing and a wide range of contemporary genres have their roots in letters The writing of a letter is embedded in a particular social situation and like all other types of literacy objects and events the activity gains its meaning and significance from being situated in cultural beliefs values and practices This book brings together anthropologists historians educators and other social scientists providing a range of case studies that explore aspects of the socially situated nature of letter writing Correspondence, 1997 Correspondence

Models for Educators Pete M. Mann, 1982 European Women's Letter-writing from the 11th to the 20th Centuries Clare Monagle, Carolyn James, David Garrioch, Barbara Caine, 2025-10-01 This book reveals the importance of personal letters in the history of European women between the year 1000 and the advent of the telephone It explores the changing ways that women used correspondence for self expression and political mobilization over this period enabling them to navigate the myriad gendered restrictions that limited women's engagement in the world Whether written from the medieval cloister or the renaissance court or the artisan's workshop or the drawing room letters crossed geographical and social distance and were mobile in ways that women themselves could not always be Women wrote to govern to argue to plead and to demand They also wrote to express love and intimacy and in so doing to explain and to understand themselves This book argues that the personal letter was a crucial place for European women's self fashioning and that exploring the history of their letters offers a profound insight into their subjectivity and agency over time Culture of Letter-Writing in Pre-Modern Islamic Society Adrian Gully, 2008-02-07 The Culture of Letter Writing in Pre Modern Islamic Society received an honourable mention from the British Kuwait Friendship Society at BRISMES 2009 Writing letters was an important component of intellectual life in the Middle Islamic period telling us much about the cultural history of pre modern Islamic society This book offers a unique analysis of letter writing focusing on the notion of the power of the pen The author looks at the wider context of epistolography relating it to the power structures of Islamic society in that period He also attempts to identify some of the similarities and differences between Muslim modes of letter writing and those of western cultures One of the strengths of this book is that it is based on a wide range of primary Arabic sources thus reflecting the broader epistemological importance of letter writing in Islamic society The ladies' and gentleman's model letter writer

Ladies, 1871 Writing to the World Rachael Scarborough King, 2018-06-17 King's pitch for the indebtedness of the genres we know well the novel the biography the magazine piece to letter writing is stylish and convincing Christina Lupton author of Reading and the Making of Time in the Eighteenth Century In Writing to the World Rachael Scarborough King examines the shift from manuscript to print media culture in the long eighteenth century She introduces the concept of the bridge genre which enables such change by transferring existing textual conventions to emerging modes of composition and circulation She draws on this concept to reveal how four crucial genres that emerged during this time the newspaper the periodical the novel and the biography were united by their reliance on letters to accustom readers to these new forms of print media King explains that as newspapers scientific journals book reviews and other new genres began to circulate widely much of their form and content was borrowed from letters allowing for easier access to these unfamiliar modes of printing and reading texts Arguing that bridge genres encouraged people to see themselves as connected by networks of communication as members of what they called the world of writing King combines techniques of genre theory with archival research and literary interpretation analyzing canonical works such as Addison and Steele's Spectator Samuel Johnson's Lives of the Poets and Jane Austen's Northanger Abbey alongside anonymous periodicals and the letters of middle class housewives This original and groundbreaking work in media and literary history offers a model for the process of genre formation Ultimately Writing to the World is a sophisticated look at the intersection of print and the public sphere This erudite sophisticated beautifully written book is a major achievement Thomas Keymer author of Poetics of the Pillory

New Perspectives in British Cultural History Rosalind Crone, David Gange, Katy Jones, 2021-03-04 This book is composed of a selection of papers presented at a conference in Cambridge in December 2005 Cultural history is a relatively new sub discipline Over the past few decades it has become increasingly apparent that a new generation of historians has emerged These scholars have become concerned with research sources and questions traditionally beyond the scope of the discipline of history Indeed recent monographs in history have demonstrated a growing awareness of the cultural imagination in analyses of patterns of change and continuity in the past Such a movement has also encouraged the development of new networks between different disciplines in the Arts and Social Sciences The authors of these chapters come from a wide range of academic backgrounds While all are concerned with crucial issues of the past they represent a substantial variety of disciplines In addition to the historians are those trained and working in literary studies art history design music and science As early career scholars the research they present is cutting edge these contributions represent the very latest trends in cultural studies and demonstrate the attempts of new researchers to answer the most current and challenging questions that are being proposed in this field Method and Methods in the Teaching of English Israel Edwin Goldwasser,1913
