Darwin And Archaeology:

Darwin and Archaeology John P. Hart, John Edward Terrell, 2002-05-30 The last decades of the 20th century witnessed strongly growing interest in evolutionary approaches to the human past Even now however there is little real agreement on what evolutionary archaeology is all about A major obstacle is the lack of consensus on how to define the basic principles of Darwinian thought in ways that are genuinely relevant to the archaeological sciences Each chapter in this new collection of specially invited essays focuses on a single major concept and its associated key words summarizes its historic and current uses and then reviews case studies illustrating that concept s present and probable future role in research What these authors say shows the richness and current diversity of thought among those today who insist that Darwinism has a key role to play in archaeology Each chapter includes definitions of related key words Because the same key words may have the same or different meanings in different conceptual contexts many of these key words are addressed in more than one chapter In addition to exploring key concepts collectively the book s chapters show the broad range of ideas and opinions in this intellectual arena today This volume reflects and clarifies debate today on the role of Darwinism in modern archaeology and by doing so may help shape the directions that future work in archaeology will take Darwin's Legacy: The Status of

Evolutionary Archaeology in Argentina Marcelo Cardillo, Hernán Muscio, 2016-01-22 This book collects the contributions to the symposium The current state of evolutionary archeology in Argentina that was held in Buenos Aires for celebrating the 200th anniversary of Charles Darwin s birth and the 150th anniversary of the publication of On the Origin of Species

Rediscovering Darwin Geoffrey A. Clark, Douglas B. Bamforth, American Anthropological Association, 1997

Archaeological Theory Matthew Johnson, 2011-09-09 Archaeological Theory 2nd Edition is the most current and comprehensive introduction to the field available Thoroughly revised and updated this engaging text offers students an ideal entry point to the major concepts and ongoing debates in archaeological research New edition of a popular introductory text that explores the increasing diversity of approaches to archaeological theory Features more extended coverage of traditional or culture historical archaeology Examines theory across the English speaking world and beyond Offers greatly expanded coverage of evolutionary theory divided into sociocultural and Darwinist approaches Includes an expanded glossary bibliography and useful suggestions for further readings Darwinian Archaeologies Herbert D.G. Maschner, 1996-10-31 Just over 20 years ago the publication of two books indicated the reemergence of Darwinian ideas on the public stage E O Wilson s Sociobiology The New Synthesis and Richard Dawkins The Selfish Gene spelt out and developed the implications of ideas that had been quietly revolutionizing biology for some time Most controversial of all needless to say was the suggestion that such ideas had implications for human behavior in general and social behavior in particular Nowhere was the outcry greater than in the field of anthropology for anthropologists saw themselves as the witnesses and defenders of human diversity and plasticity in the face of what they regarded as a biological determinism supporting a right wing racist and sexist political agenda Indeed how could a discipline inheriting the social and cultural determinisms of Boas Whorf and Durkheim do anything else Life for those who ventured to challenge this orthodoxy was not always easy In the mid 1990s such views are still widely held and these two strands of anthropology have tended to go their own way happily not talking to one another Nevertheless in the intervening years Darwinian ideas have gradually begun to encroach on the cultural landscape in variety of ways and topics that had not been linked together since the mid 19th century have once again come to be seen as connected Modern genetics turns out to be of great significance in understanding the history of humanity Darwin's Apprentice Janet Owen,2013-03-27 The fascinating story of Charles Darwin's friend fellow scientist and champion Sir John Lubbock was an important Darwinist witness to an extraordinary moment in the history of science and archaeology the emotive scientific religious and philosophical debate which was triggered by the publication of Darwin's On the Origin of Species in 1859 Darwin's Apprentice looks at Lubbock's critical yet often overlooked role in the Darwinian campaign including the ways in which Lubbock's archaeological and ethnographic collections shaped both his work and personal life It offers an enlightening view not only of the beginnings of Darwinism but of the scientific world of late nineteenth century Britain Archaeology's Visual Culture Roger Balm,2015-12-14 Archaeology's Visual Culture explores archaeology through the lens of visual culture theory The insistent visuality of archaeology is a key stimulus for the imaginative and creative interpretation of our encounters with the past Balm investigates the nature of this projection of the visual revealing an embedded subjectivity in the imagery of archaeology and acknowledging the multiplicity of meanings that cohere around artifacts archaeological sites and museum displays Using a wide range of case studies the book highlights how archaeologists can view objects and the consequences that ensue from these ways of seeing Throughout the book Balm considers the potential for documentary images and visual material held in archives to perform cultural work within and between groups of specialists With primary sources ranging from the mid nineteenth to the early twenty first century this volume also maps the intellectual and social connections between archaeologists and their peers Geographical settings include Britain Cyprus Mesoamerica the Middle East and the United States and the sites of visual encounter are no less diverse ranging from excavation reports in salvage archaeology to instrumentally derived data sets and remote sensing imagery By forensically examining selected visual records from published accounts and archival sources enduring tropes of representation become apparent that transcend issues of style and reflect fundamental visual sensibilities within the discipline of archaeology

Darwin Archaeology Patricia Bourke,Sally Brockwell,Clayton Fredericksen,2005-01-01 This volume represents the first compilation of archaeological research for the Darwin region The collection of papers in this volume focuses archaeological attention on a single region from a variety of perspectives over a time period from 4000 years ago to the Second World War Some papers expand upon former research on subsistence and settlement of past millennia while others are groundbreaking in their treatment of the material remains of the very recent past The aim is to make the results of this research accessible to the general public as well as to archaeologists and historians

New Directions in Archaeological Science Andrew S. Fairbairn, Sue O'Connor, Benjamin Marwick, 2009-02-01 Archaeological Science meetings will have a personality of their own depending on the focus of the host archaeological fraternity itself The 8th Australasian Archaeometry meeting follows this pattern but underlying the regional emphasis is the continuing concern for the processes of change in the landscape that simultaneously effect and illuminate the archaeological record These are universal themes for any archaeological research with the increasing employment of science based studies proving to be a key to understanding the place of humans as subjects and agents of change over time This collection of refereed papers covers the thematic fields of geoarchaeology archaeobotany materials analysis and chronometry with particular emphasis on the first two The editors Andrew Fairbairn Sue O Connor and Ben Marwick outline the special value of these contributions in the introduction The international nature of archaeological science will mean that the advances set out in these papers will find a receptive audience among many archaeologists elsewhere There is no doubt that the story that Australasian archaeology has to tell has been copiously enriched by incorporating a widening net of advanced science based studies This has brought attention to the nature of the environment as a human artefact a fact now more widely appreciated and archaeology deals with these artefacts among others in this way in this publication

Life on the Margins Patrick Faulkner, 2013-12-20 The research presented here is primarily concerned with human environment interactions on the tropical coast of northern Australia during the late Holocene Based on the suggestion that significant change can occur within short time frames as a direct result of interactive processes the archaeological evidence from the Point Blane Peninsula Blue Mud Bay is used to address the issue of how much change and variability occurred in hunter gatherer economic and social structures during the late Holocene in coastal northeastern Arnhem Land The suggestion proposed here is that processes of environmental and climatic change resulted in changes in resource distribution and abundance which in turn affected patterns of settlement and resource exploitation strategies levels of mobility and potentially the size of foraging groups on the coast The question of human behavioural variability over the last 3000 years in Blue Mud Bay has been addressed by examining issues of scale and resolution in archaeological interpretation specifically the differential chronological and spatial patterning of shell midden and mound sites on the peninsula in conjunction with variability in molluscan resource exploitation To this end the biological and ecological characteristics of the dominant molluscan species is considered in detail in combination with assessing the potential for human impact through predation Investigating pre contact coastal foraging behaviour via the archaeological record provides an opportunity for change to recognised in a number of ways For example a differential focus on resources variations in group size and levels of mobility can all be identified It has also been shown that human environment interactions are non linear or progressive and that human behaviour during the late Holocene was both flexible and dynamic

guwelamagapa Gun nerranga gun nerranga rrawa An barra gun nika describes the An barra Archaeological Project which investigated the archaeological sites around the mouth of the Blyth River An gartcha Wana literally Big River in central Arnhem Land in the Northern Territory of Australia This volume delves into the pre colonial settlement patterns and subsistence strategies of the An barra community set against the backdrop of significant environmental changes during the mid to late Holocene The authors provide a detailed analysis of the archaeological findings comparing them with ethnographic evidence to uncover the history and cultural heritage of the An barra people The Traditional Owners including Betty Ngurrpangurra and other community members actively participated in the research providing invaluable knowledge and insights Their support enabled the collection of archaeological assemblages and facilitated the interpretation of findings through the lens of their cultural heritage This volume is a companion piece to Betty Meehan's earlier work Shell Bed to Shell Midden 1982 and extends the narrative by integrating archaeological data with ethnographic insights Gun guwelamagapa reveals the relationships between the An barra community and their environment highlighting the role of shell middens earth mounds and other archaeological features in understanding the past The authors discuss the significance of these sites the methods used in their investigation and the broader implications for interpreting the archaeological record of northern Australia Gun guwelamagapa emphasises the importance of integrating ethnographic and archaeological data to provide a holistic understanding of past human behaviours It also showcases the contributions of the An barra community to the preservation and interpretation of their cultural heritage offering new perspectives on the history and culture of the An barra people

Readings in Physical Anthropology and Archaeology David E. Hunter, Phillip Whitten, 1978 Physical Anthropology and Archaeology Peter B. Hammond, 1968 Ulster, Its Archaeology and Antiquities Henry Cairnes Lawlor, 1928 Australian Aboriginal Studies, 2007 Applying Evolutionary Archaeology Michael J. O'Brien, R. Lee Lyman, 2000-03-31 Anthropology and by extension archaeology has had a long standing interest in evolution in one or several of its various guises Pick up any lengthy treatise on humankind written in the last quarter of the nineteenth century and the chances are good that the word evolution will appear somewhere in the text If for some reason the word itself is absent the odds are excellent that at least the concept of change over time will have a central role in the discussion After one of the preeminent and often vilified social scientists of the nineteenth century Herbert Spencer popularized the term in the 1850s evolution became more or less a household word usually being used synonymously with change albeit change over extended periods of time Later through the writings of Edward Burnett Tylor Lewis Henry Morgan and others the notion of evolution as it applies to stages of social and political development assumed a prominent position in anthropological discussions To those with only a passing knowledge of American anthropology it often appears that evolutionism in the early twentieth century went into a decline at the hands of Franz Boas and those of similar outlook often termed particularists However it was not evolutionism that was under attack but rather comparativism an approach that used the ethnographic present as a key to
