Raja Mohan, Harnaikh Singh, 2023 Although China has been an important external actor in South Asia since the middle of the last century it is only in the 21st century that China became a decisive influence on the region's evolution The emergence of China as the world's second largest economy had naturally made it the largest trading partner for most of the South Asian countries China's rapid military modernisation facilitated by its expansive economic growth had a major impact on the region's security politics China's political and diplomatic weight is now visible sharply not only in the economic foreign and security policies of the South Asian nations but also in their domestic politics Meanwhile India has emerged albeit at a slower pace than China as a major power over the last two decades Like Beijing New Delhi's geopolitical aspirations too have steadily risen during that period This has set the stage for growing strategic friction between the India and China The friction has enveloped many regional and global domains but its greatest expression has been in the shared South Asian neighbourhood India is determined to sustain its traditional primacy in the region and China is determined to consolidate its growing influence in South Asia The sharpening friction has also begun to intersect with the growing great power tensions especially between the United States and China Many elements of these new dynamic have drawn academic engagement in particular from the major power perspectives However the voices of the smaller South Asian nations have not been sufficiently heard or analysed This volume seeks to address that major gap in the current discourse on the Indian subcontinent and its changing role in great power politics This volume brings multiple regional voices to assess how the various South Asian nations are dealing with the growing rivalry between India and China Many of the chapters in this volume were initially published as shorter essays by the Institute of South Asian Studies in its South Asia Discussion Papers series in 2020 Those essays have been updated and expanded in this volume Additional contributions have also been commissioned to enrich the special perspectives that this volume presents The Square Deal, 1915 Coping with a Bad Global Image John Franklin Copper, Ta-ling Lee, 1997-06-19 This book assesses the human rights condition in the People's Republic of China during 1993-94 focusing on how abuses have engendered difficulties for Beijing in international relations It considers changes in the political and legal systems and Communist ideology more correctly its demise in its appraisal These the authors contend are causative factors of human rights abuses and need to be understood to put the human rights situation in its proper perspective Such matters as crime forced labor and executions are examined in detail to delineate the worst kinds of human rights abuses as well as current trends Dissidents religious advocates and intellectuals are also a focus of attention Copublished with the East Asia Research Institute The Kolodziej,Roger E. Kanet,1996 This volume provides answers to the question of how the international community might cope with armed conflict after the Cold War It identifies key actors states and international organizations that have the resources and potentially the will to address the problems of continuing violence and enduring conflicts The book also evaluates the roles and strategies that might be adopted by these actors unilaterally or cooperatively to ease or end such armed struggles The authors review the role of the United States Russia Japan and China all of which have the potential to play constructive roles in resolving conflicts They also explore the contributions that the United Nations the European Community and other transnational organizations can make to building a more peaceful and secure world Instead of appealing to grand theory as a guide for coping the authors conclude different mixes of actors resources roles and strategies will have to be fashioned to meet the special needs of each conflict Coping is viewed as an international imperative and not as the responsibility or prerogative of any one actor The volume will be of interest to anyone concerned with international relations international organizations and security issues Contributors are Arthur J Alexander Mohammed Ayoob Nicole Ball Paul F Diehl Roger E Kanet Samuel S Kim Edward A Kolodziej Edward J Laurence David F Linowes Patrick M Morgan Jack Snyder Janice Gross Stein and I William Zartman The Far Eastern Review ,1904 Millard's Review ,1918
