Economy Susan Averett, Laura M. [VNV] Argys, Saul D. Hoffman, 2018 This collection of essays reviews the key trends

surveys the relevant economic theory and summarizes and critiques the empirical research literature By providing a view of what we know what we do not know and what the critical unanswered questions are this Handbook provides an examination of the many changes that have occurred in women s economic lives

Homelessness Prevention and Intervention in Social Work Heather Larkin, Amanda Aykanian, Calvin L. Streeter, 2019-06-26 This important text provides a comprehensive survey of homelessness in America its scope and causes its diverse populations and the array of responses at the individual community and systems levels Expert contributors explore the links between trauma and homelessness the cycle of homelessness and health mental health problems and barriers preventing people from accessing services Case studies of effective programs and practices focus on science based interventions broad understanding of client needs and close coordination between systems and agencies Finally specialized chapters discuss issues and experiences common to homeless youth and young adults including housing instability on college campuses and empowerment based strategies for engaging youth voice in programming Included in the coverage Homelessness and health disparities a health equity lens Affordable housing and housing policy responses to homelessness Street talk homeless discourses and the politics of service provision Multisectoral collaborations to address homelessness Trauma informed care in homelessness service settings challenges and opportunities Incorporating youth voice into services for young people experiencing homelessness Homelessness Prevention and Intervention in Social Work fills a critical gap in the social work curriculum as a main or a supplementary text It also makes an accessible resource for clinicians and community practitioners seeking current knowledge on the topic practical approaches to working with clients experiencing homelessness and useful information for effective program and policy design

Safety and Coping Strategies of Homeless Youth Connie Chung, 2012 This study also explored the complexities of coping with trauma in young people simultaneously struggling for survival The author argued that homeless youth are highly self reliant and self protective but that these strengths can insulate them from mental health and counseling services that could help them recover from trauma Homeless youth were found to autonomously cope with their trauma by coping without the assistance of agency related or informal supports

International Perspectives on Homelessness Valerie Polakow, Cindy Guillean, 2001-08-30 Annotation Examines the problem of homelessness in all types of nations from wealthy western cultures to poor undeveloped countries

Exploring the Coping Strategy Skills of Homeless Women Bette-Lee M. Axiak, 2014 The fastest growing subgroup in the homeless population is families headed by single women National Coalition for the Homeless 2009 Rosenheck et al 1999 Hodnicki Horner Boyle 1992 These homeless mothers may use unique strategies that assist them through their experience of being homeless In order for there to be a better understanding of how to assist homeless mothers the coping mechanisms that are used by them must be identified Eight homeless mothers and two homeless fathers were recruited through a family shelter and community center in the County of Tuolumne The purpose of the study was to explore coping strategies of homeless mothers who had children between the ages of 0 and 18 Two fathers asked to participate in the study so their contributions are included The participants were between the ages of 21 to 39 Five participants were married and the remaining five were single at the time of the interviews There are four important findings that were revealed in this research study The first finding is that homeless parents go through similar phases of homelessness as non parenting homeless adults and they often use the same coping mechanisms in each phase of their homelessness denial substance abuse reliance on family and friends avoidance of available community resources Finding number two in the research was that regardless of age marital status or gender causes of homelessness are the same for homeless mothers and non mothers Some of these causes are poverty alcohol or drug use domestic violence weak social networks and an absence of knowledge about available resources in their communities The third finding was that hope is crucial in overcoming homelessness The fourth and final finding was that homeless mothers have unique needs such as the need for prenatal care assistance in giving birth parenting classes and child care when compared with all other subgroups of homeless populations Stoner 1983 Merves 1992 Rosenheck et al 1999 Therefore the focus of future research may not need to be on the coping mechanisms of homeless mothers but on their particular needs Homeless Mothers ,2008 As affordable housing resources diminish in cities throughout the country poor families increasingly join the ranks of the homeless This study considers the question of whether there is an association between coping ability and adaptation and the conditions of homelessness for homeless mothers The research design involves in person interviews with 80 homeless mothers residing at a shelter for homeless families in New York City All were on public assistance at the time of the study had at least one child and had been at the shelter for no more than 4 months The study considers two types of coping problem focused which involves active efforts to address the stressor and emotion focused which involves directing attention away from the stressor through defensive mechanisms such as avoidance This study asked whether the type of coping problem focused or emotion focused is associated with the number of times that homeless families relocated the total amount of time that they were homeless and the number of concurrent stressful life events they faced in the 3 years prior to the study It also considered whether these three independent variables number of relocations duration of homelessness and number of life events were associated with adaptation to implicit and explicit shelter expectations Results indicate that homeless mothers who relocate four or more times utilize defensive emotion focused coping strategies more than mothers who relocate three times or less Additionally homeless mothers who have experienced 20 or more stressful life events utilize more emotion focused coping strategies than mothers who experience fewer than 20 stressful life events Policy makers and clinicians should incorporate the results of this study as well as others documenting the detrimental effects of frequent relocations and numerous stressful life events on the coping capacity of homeless mothers in designing social policy and clinical services for this population

The Faces of Homelessness in London Jeanne Moore,1995 This work studies homelessness in a structured manner It examines categories of homeless settings psychological types and how they relate to different forms of homelessness the concept of heartlessness the effects of buildings designed for the homeless and other factors Reconnecting: A Grounded Theory Study of Formerly Homeless Mothers Pamela M. H. Cone, 2006 The theoretical sample included 18 English speaking women at least 18 years old and 12 first hand stories from the literature Data collection involved participant observations and semi structured interviews Constant comparative analysis of data began with open coding of the first interview and continued until themes emerged and categories were saturated Participants had the opportunity to voice their opinions of the emerging theory which gave the researcher confirmation of findings Rewriting Homeless Identity , Jeremy S. Godfrey, 2015-12-24 Rewriting Homeless Identity Writing as Coping in an Urban Homeless Community focuses on the identities of homeless writers with initially limited or no specialized training in writing at a homeless community church Through an ethnographic two year study author Jeremy Godfrey hosted and participated in weekly writing workshops He also participated in the founding of a street newspaper within that community This book shows Godfrey s experiences in leading writing workshops and how they promoted self exploration within this community Students of the workshop negotiated their unique individual writing personas during the study Those personas were often coping with their experiences on the streets More importantly the writers viewed those experiences as central to their writing processes Much like the setting of the workshop at an urban non denominational community church the writers honed their coping tactics through conversational and performance driven writings Rewriting Homeless Identity highlights those writing samples and the conversations with homeless authors of the samples in relation to identity and a sense of growth Homelessness in Australia Cecily Neil, 1994 International Critical Perspectives on Homelessness Mary Jo Huth, J Talmadge Wright, 1997-05-21 This volume focuses on the global character of homelessness bringing together studies from different countries to provide the critical reflection often absent from public policy or social welfare deliberations Survival and Coping Skills of Homeless Families with Children Nancy D. Bethem, 1989 A Review of Single Homelessness Research Susanne Klinker, 2000 A vast amount of research has been conducted on the subject of single homelessness over the past decade However this material is often inaccessible to a wider audience appearing in scholarly journals or as local studies that are not generally available or advertised This highly accessible guide is based on an in depth review of single homelessness research in Britain throughout the 1990s and provides 200 high quality research summaries Each summary comments on the robustness and usefulness of each study and highlights aims methods key findings and recommendations The summaries are indexed by keywords covering all major areas of single homelessness research A review of single homelessness can be used independently or read alongside the two complementary reports A bibliography of single homelessness research and the overview report Single homelessness These three reports are all vital reading for researchers policy makers and practitioners in the field of single homelessness and anyone interested in issues related to homelessness generally
