Burkitt, 1981 In this major synthesis of cross cultural research 34 distinguished scientists study 25 common metabolic and degenerative diseases characteristic of all advanced Western nations and then examine their incidence in developing countries among both hunter gatherers and peasant agriculturalists Thus the authors provide a unique opportunity to compare epidemiological data reflecting modern modes of life with data influenced by habits and diets dating back 400 generations to the advent of agriculture and even 200 000 generations or more to the dawn of man The results confirm the view that diseases like hypertension lung cancer diverticular disease and appendicitis are maladaptations to environmental factors introduced since the Industrial Revolution They also demonstrate that such diseases become more prevalent when Western lifestyles are adopted in primitive societies Certain studies reveal a regression of disease incidence when exercise is increased and a diet high in starch and fiber low in fat and salt is resumed characteristics of a simpler way of life Western Diseases greatly broadens our perspective on some of the most vexing health problems in our society It will be an essential reference for epidemiologists nutritionists and gastroenterologists in particular International Encyclopedia of Public Health William C Cockerham, 2016-10-06 International Encyclopedia of Public Health Second Edition Seven Volume Set is an authoritative and comprehensive guide to the major issues challenges methods and approaches of global public health Taking a multidisciplinary approach this new edition combines complementary scientific fields of inquiry linking biomedical research with the social and life sciences to address the three major themes of public health research disease health processes and disciplines This book helps readers solve real world problems in global and local health through a multidisciplinary and comprehensive approach Covering all dimensions of the field from the details of specific diseases to the organization of social
