Darwin's Worms Adam Phillips, 2009-06-16 Adam Phillips has been called the psychotherapist of the floating world and the closest thing we have to a philosopher of happiness His style is epigrammatic his intelligence electric His new book Darwin's Worms uses the biographical details of Darwin's and Freud's lives to examine endings suffering mortality extinction and death Both Freud and Darwin were interested in how destruction conserves life They took their inspiration from fossils or from half remembered dreams Each told a story that has altered our perception of our lives For Darwin Phillips explains the story to tell was how species can drift towards extinction for Freud the story was how the individual tended to and tended towards his own death In each case it is a death story that uniquely illuminates the life story Darwin's Worms Adam Phillips, 1999 Adam Phillips has been called the psychotherapist of the floating world and the closest thing we have to a philosopher of happiness In this extraordinary book he takes a look via Freud and Darwin at endings at mortality extinction and death Darwin and Freud took God out of the big picture leaving nothing between mankind and nature Their ideas were met with righteous indignation But today whether or not we read Darwin and Freud we speak a version of their languages Most of us think of childhood and sexuality as sources of suffering and we picture ourselves as animals struggling competitively for survival Yet as Adam Phillips argues we are not merely trapped in a world of continuous loss Taking as his examples Darwin's life long fascination in lowly earthworms and Freud's life long antipathy to grubbing biographers he unexpectedly finds much to celebrate For both of these writers are interested above all in how destruction conserves life They take their inspiration from fossils or from half remembered dreams and show how life is about what can be done with these humble remnants from the past Darwin and Freud render ageing accident and death integral not alien to our sense of ourselves They teach us the art of transience Darwin's Worms Adam Phillips, 2001-02-07 A startlingly original psychoanalytic writer takes on death loss and the telling of life stories through an exploration of Darwin and Freud
