We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience Tuffy's Desert Adventure Kay Whiting,2010-01-01 The Rainbow Trail Zane Grey,2021-01-25 All day Shefford had plodded onward with the clear horizon line a thing unattainable and for days before that he had ridden the wild bare flats and climbed the rocky desert benches The great colored reaches and steps had led endlessly onward and upward through dim and deceiving distance A hundred miles of desert travel with its mistakes and lessons and intimations had not prepared him for what he now saw He beheld what seemed a world that knew only magnitude Wonder and awe fixed his gaze and thought remained aloof Then that dark and unknown northland flung menace at him An irresistible call had drawn him to this seamed and peaked border of Arizona this broken battlemented wilderness of Utah upland and at first sight they frowned upon him as if to warn him not to search for what lay hidden beyond the ranges But Shefford thrilled with both fear and exultation That was the country which had been described to him Far across the red valley far beyond the ragged line of black mesa and yellow range lay the wild canyon with its haunting secret Red Lake must be his Rubicon Either he must enter the unknown to seek to strive to find or turn back and fail and never know and be always haunted A friend's strange story had prompted his singular journey a beautiful rainbow with its mystery and promise had decided him Once in his life he had answered a wild call to the kingdom of adventure within him and once in his life he had been happy But here in the horizon wide face of that up flung and cloven desert he grew cold he faltered even while he felt more fatally drawn
