The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 1919. In the midst of World War I, Kurt Dorn cannot agree with his German-born father that America is making a mistake by siding with Great Britain. Meanwhile, area farmers come into conflict with the IWW, which doesn't want the area's wheat to go to support the troops.

The Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2014-06-16. Late in June, the vast northwestern desert of wheat began to take on a tinge of gold, lending an austere beauty to that endless rolling smooth world of treeless hills, where miles of fallow ground and miles of waving grain sloped up to the far separated homes of the heroic men who had conquered over sage and sand. These simple homes of farmers seemed lost on an immensity of soft gray and golden billows of land, insignificant dots here and there on distant hills so far apart that nature only seemed accountable for those broad squares of alternate gold and brown extending on and on to the waving horizon line. A lonely, hard, heroic country where flowers and fruit were not, nor birds and brooks nor green pastures. Whirling strings of dust looped up over fallow ground; the short dry wheat lay back from the wind; the haze in the distance was drab and smoky, heavy with substance.

Desert of Wheat Zane Grey, 2020-01-19. Desert of Wheat: Kurt marries the daughter of a rancher and she nurses him back to health after his tour of Germany during World War I. The film Riders of the Dawn was based on his book. Zane Grey (1872-1939) was known for his American frontier novels and, in particular, Riders of the Purple Sage (1912). Many of his books were later turned into

Hollywood films and he eventually moved to California to be closer to his work in the film industry      The Desert of Wheat
