In addition to oral traditions, ancient Indigenous Australians left behind a huge amount of information about their lives and beliefs in paintings and carvings on rocks and cave walls. Traditional paintings, usually done in a natural pigment color, depict an actor, tell the Dreaming stories and show how people and animals lived.

An image frequently found on rock faces in the Kimberley region in northern Western Australia is the Wandjina. To the Mirimung people from this region, a Wandjina is a spiritual ancestor and supreme creator. Wandjinas have large eyes and no mouths. They are to encourage rain and fertility. The oldest Wandjina images in the Kimberley are believed to be up to 40,000 years old.
