Understanding Context In Designing ,2005 Everything around us that is not a simple untouched piece of nature has been designed by someone Human society has found a great refuge in these designed objects or the artefacts and thus has adapted vociferously to their inclusion into everyday life From the early conception as art and then lately as scientific activity now during the last few decades designing has been understood as a fundamental aspect of human life This understanding has become a motivating force in the last four decades for design research community Remarkable theories methods models and approaches for designing have been propounded during this period by various active design researchers Yet a comprehensive design theory remains largely an elusive dream and usage of proposed methods in practice unimpressive The dominant paradigms in design theory though rich in description seem to lack interconnection The thesis explores and questions the very foundations on which design theories have been built Theoretical contemplation over designing is sought through asking why question which brings in context to the forefront Thus understanding context in designing is the central theme to this dissertation Incidentally it is the context that holds key to the enhanced usage of design methods in practice The thesis presents a basis to thaw the development of design theory and provides a pragmatic approach to augment usage of design methods in practice These objectives have been achieved through the approach outlined below An extensive discussion on the notion of context is presented underpinned by the detailed survey of definitions and world views held in by various domains of studies in regard to context The salient characteristics of context identified through this discussion have been used to articulate a concise definition of context A comprehensive dialogue supplemented by the literature in design incorporating dyv of design designing artifacts and context has been put f Design in a Global Context Karen Fiss,2009

Research by Design: Proceedings A ,2001 What Is Design? Anne J. Banks,2005-06 This book is an overview of the process of design as it has evolved from the earliest visual images and artifacts from prehistory to our modern practice of design Originally written as a textbook for design students and design professionals it is also oriented to the general public interest in the design arts and the fine arts Every object has a story to tell about its period in time its culture its maker and ways of making This thought was the idea behind the making of this book that we can read this story through the interpretation of the forms of objects Important influences on modern design have come from the Bauhaus and the French decorative arts However what the designer does is best expressed in the work of American industrial designer Norman Bel Geddes Excerpt page 55 Bell Geddes believed that design is primarily a matter of thinking and of envisioning how the customer would use the product While every product has a specific solution Bel Geddes instituted market research as an essential part of the design process In his redesign of the counter scale for the Toledo Scale Company he changed hand weights to a spring mechanism cast iron to aluminum enclosed the skeleton body in a white enamel shell and made the scale flush with the counter for ease of use while retaining its basic function Bel Geddes s major innovation was the redesign of the Standard gas stove from a stylized furniture form to a single unit encased in clean white enamel Rethinking the stove as a skyscraper grid hung with steel plates he simplified the manufacturing process by creating twelve interchangeable components to form sixteen different models Source Norman Bel Geddes Horizons California.
