may be up to 10 million Indians living with Alzheimer's disease or related dementias and that number is expected to increase dramatically in the next few decades. What is it like to live with and amid this increasingly prevalent condition, an affliction that some fear more than death? In My Father's Brain, the distinguished physician and author Sandeep Jauhar sets his father's descent into Alzheimer's alongside his own journey toward understanding this disease and how it might best be coped with if not cured. In an intimate memoir rich with humour and heartbreak, Jauhar relates how his immigrant father and extended family felt quarrelled and found their way through the dissolution of a cherished life. Along the way, he lucidly exposes what happens in the brain as we age and our memory falters and explores everything from the history of ancient Greece to the most cutting-edge neurological and bioethical research. Throughout My Father's Brain, he confronts the moral and psychological concerns that arise when family members must become caregivers, when children's and parents' roles reverse, and when we must accept unforeseen turns in our closest relationships and in our understanding of what it is to have a self. The result is a work of essential insight into dementia and into how scientists, caregivers, and all of us in an aging society are reckoning with the fallout.

Virginia Journal of Education, 1922      Who Cares About Parents? Kim Price-Glynn, 2025-11-11. Who cares for parental caregivers? The short answer is parenting groups do. Who Cares for Parents examines how parenting groups collectively build and contribute significant resources to form a broader care infrastructure for adult family caregivers with children. This book looks at the content of care parenting groups provide for parents through comparative research including mothers, fathers, and nonbinary parents. Cases include some of the most recognizable parenting groups in the United States, some with vast networks of parent members numbering in the thousands or even millions, like the Parent Teacher Association, La Leche League, and MOMS Club International. The book also examines newer and perhaps less well-known groups like the City Dads Group, the Upper East Side UES Mommas, as well as smaller sets of local dads groups and a babysitting co-op. Can parents in the contemporary United States secure some of the necessary resources to provide care not only for their children but also for themselves through parenting groups? The evidence from this research suggests they can. Parenting groups have a long history of organizing membership meetings education material resources and advocacy to provide for parents needs Parenting groups ideologies and practices often seek broad goals and sometimes include far reaching advocacy innovative solutions and possibilities for what Price Glynn calls strategic parenting and social change Alongside their successes however parenting groups also face challenges of producing narrow and temporary alliances exclusion and exacerbating inequalities Despite their many challenges Price Glynn remains hopeful about the possibilities for non familial and collective care infrastructure like that performed by parent groups      Transactions and Notes of the Concrete Institute ,1925
