Towards Third Generation Learning and Teaching Murat A. Yülek,J.G. Wissema,2022-10-04 Learning and hence education are in turmoil Traditional learning techniques are challenged by powerful new approaches and insights while students and employers alike put new demands on education The new insights come from quite different areas of science This book aims to provide a future oriented picture of the various developments culminating in an educated speculation on learning and education in the near future It has been written for leaders in education scholars as well as practitioners and policymakers Learning will be a central issue in the decades to come In the words of the recently deceased cultural anthropologist Catherine Bateson We are not what we know but what we are willing to learn The Personal and the Professional in Aid Work Anne-Meike Fechter,2016-03-16 This book considers how the personal and the professional dimensions are related and how they matter for aid work The contributions to this edited volume are based on the assumption that all actors are relevant in development including national and international aid workers A key question which the book explores is why the personal so often remains unacknowledged in development studies even though its salience for aid workers is well documented One possible reason is an implicit narrative of aid work as altruistic and self sacrificing which renders it inappropriate to devote much attention to the experiences of development professionals themselves In order to redress this this book critically considers the kind of difference they make and aims to understand how they respond to the challenges of their work The book explores their efficacy as human beings and employees with individual subjectivities social and cultural beliefs and practices and documents how these shape their involvement in development processes This book was published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly
