Workshop,Institute for Theological Encounter with Science and Technology (Saint Louis). Workshop,1998 Darwin Day in America John G. West,2014-04-22 At the dawn of the last century leading scientists and politicians giddily predicted that science especially Darwinian biology would supply solutions to all the intractable problems of American society from crime to poverty to sexual maladjustment Instead politics and culture were dehumanized as scientific experts began treating human beings as little more than animals or machines In criminal justice these experts denied the existence of free will and proposed replacing punishment with invasive cures such as the lobotomy In welfare they proposed eliminating the poor by sterilizing those deemed biologically unfit In business they urged the selection of workers based on racist theories of human evolution and the development of advertising methods to more effectively manipulate consumer behavior In sex education they advocated creating a new sexual morality based on normal mammalian behavior without regard to longstanding ethical and religious imperatives Based on extensive research with primary sources and archival materials John G West's captivating Darwin Day in America tells the story of how American public policy has been corrupted by scientific ideology Marshaling fascinating anecdotes and damning quotations West's narrative explores the far reaching consequences for society when scientists and politicians deny the essential differences between human beings and the rest of nature It also exposes the disastrous results that ensue when experts claiming to speak for science turn out to be wrong West concludes with a powerful plea for the restoration of democratic accountability in an age of experts Pamphlets on Biography (Kofoid Collection) ,1928

Why We Need Religion Stephen T. Asma,2018-05-09 How we feel is as vital to our survival as how we think This claim based on the premise that emotions are largely adaptive serves as the organizing theme of Why We Need Religion This book is a novel pathway in a well trodden field of religious studies and philosophy of religion Stephen Asma argues that like art religion has direct access to our emotional lives in ways that science does not Yes science can give us emotional feelings of wonder and the sublime we can feel the sacred depths of nature but there are many forms of human suffering and vulnerability that are beyond the reach of help from science Different emotional stresses require different kinds of rescue Unlike secular authors who praise religion's ethical and civilizing function Asma argues that its core value lies in its emotionally therapeutic power No theorist of religion has failed to notice the importance of emotions in spiritual and ritual life but truly systematic research has only recently delivered concrete data on the neurology psychology and anthropology of the emotional systems This very recent affective turn has begun to map out a powerful territory of embodied cognition Why We Need Religion incorporates new data from these affective sciences into the philosophy of religion It goes on to describe the way in which religion manages those systems rage play lust care grief and so on Finally it argues that religion is still the best cultural apparatus for doing this adaptive work In short the book is a Darwinian defense of religious emotions and the cultural systems that manage them The Princeton Theological Review ,1925 Includes section Reviews of recent literature The Literary World ,1887 Christian Advocate ,1922 The Pharmaceutical Era ,1900 The Literary Guide and Rationalist Review ,1917 The Vanguard ,1904 The Life and Letters of Charles Darwin Charles Darwin,1887 The Expository Times ,1891 Michigan Christian Advocate ,1893
