

Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them. To die, to sleep —
No more — and by a sleep to say we end
The heartache, and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to: 'Tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep —
To sleep — perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub.

From Hamlet

The Bard of Avon

Rated by many as the greatest writer in the English language, William Shakespeare has become one of the major figures of Western culture. In his 38 years, Shakespeare actually invented hundreds of words—such as "generous," "suspension," "delusion," and "glaring"—and gave English an extraordinary new rhythm and cadence. He integrated the theater with elegant, multifaceted characters and stories so compelling that stage and film artists continue to discover new ways to present them.
