

Counting calories is fun!

Calories are the units of energy that we consume in the food we eat and the drink we drink!

The amount of energy you need will depend on:

- your age: for example, growing children and teenagers may need more energy
- your lifestyle: for example, how active you are
- your size: your height and weight can affect how quickly you use energy

The aim of the lesson and the table below is not to make you obsessed with calories but more to get you thinking about how many are in the foods, especially the unhealthy ones that you may eat and how long it takes to burn these off.

Men and women have a recommended daily allowance for calories:-

- Men- an average man needs 2500 a day
- Women- an average woman needs 2000 a day.
