The Southeastern Reporter ,1890 Kaleidoscope Margaret Jones Bolsterli,2015-04-15 In 2005 Margaret Jones Bolsterli learned that her great great grandfather was a free mulatto named Jordan Chavis who owned an antebellum plantation near Vicksburg Mississippi The news was a shock Bolsterli had heard about the plantation in family stories told during her Arkansas Delta childhood but Chavis s name and race had never been mentioned With further exploration Bolsterli found that when Chavis s children crossed the Mississippi River between 1859 and 1875 for exile in Arkansas they passed into the white world leaving the family s racial history completely behind Kaleidoscope is the story of this discovery and it is the story too of the rise and fall of the Chavis fortunes in Mississippi from the family s first appearance on a frontier farm in 1829 to ownership of over a thousand acres and the slaves to work them by 1860 Bolsterli learns that in the 1850s when all free colored people were ordered to leave Mississippi or be enslaved Jordan Chavis s white neighbors successfully petitioned the legislature to allow him to remain unmolested even as three of his sons and a daughter moved to Arkansas and Illinois She learns about the agility with which the old man balanced on a tightrope over chaos to survive the war and then take advantage of the opportunities of newly awarded citizenship during Reconstruction The story ends with the family s loss of everything in the 1870s after one of the exiled sons returns to Mississippi to serve in the Reconstruction legislature and a grandson attempts unsuccessfully to retain possession of the land In Kaleidoscope long silenced truths are revealed inviting questions about how attitudes toward race might have been different in the family and in America if the truth about this situation and thousands of others like it could have been told before North Carolina Historical and Genealogical Register ,1903 The Youth's Companion Nathaniel Willis,Daniel Sharp Ford,1925 Includes music Publications of the Navy Records Society ,1909 The American Historical Review John Franklin Jameson, Henry Eldridge Bourne, Robert Livingston Schuyler,1927 American Historical Review is the oldest scholarly journal of history in the United States and the largest in the world Published by the American Historical Association it covers all areas of historical research
