

A woman with long brown hair, wearing a green shirt, is sitting at a wooden desk. She is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile, her hand resting on her chin. In front of her is a silver laptop. To her left is a large potted plant with broad green leaves. To her right is a smaller potted plant with thin, feathery leaves. The background is a bright, modern interior with a white wall and a framed abstract painting. A purple banner with yellow and white text is overlaid on the bottom half of the image.

This book presents the views, opinions, and reality of remote work and creating an appropriate internal marketing culture in a remote environment. The key topics explored are the significance of remote work, remote work practice, reshaping the work environment, designing remote work models, remote work challenges, remote work facing business organizations, remote work management innovations and technology, the role of motivation and satisfaction in organizational development, employee empowerment in a remote setting, transparency and commitment for sustainable development, and the future of remote work. No Bicycle, No Bus, No Job Patrick Bek, 2025-10-01 For working people, the cost of getting to work in terms of time and expense is a crucial aspect of daily life. In the twentieth century, people's opportunity to travel increased. This did not, however, apply to everyone. The absence of affordable housing near job locations, combined with the lack of safe, efficient, and affordable mobility options, aggravated social exclusion for some. No Bicycle, No Bus, No Job details how power relations have historically enabled or restricted workers' mobility in twentieth-century Netherlands. Blue-collar workers, industrial employers, and the state shaped workers' everyday commute in a changing playing field of uneven power relations that shifted from paternalism to neo liberalism
