Step 1) Denial and Withdrawal:

When a colonial people first come upon an indigenous people, the colonial strangers will immediately look upon the indigenous as a people without culture, no moral values, nothing of any social value to merit kind comment. Thus, the colonial people deny the very existence of a culture of any merit among the indigenous people.

Indigenous people themselves, especially those who develop a closer relationship with the new-comers, gradually withdraw from their own cultural practices. Some may even join in the ridicule and the denial of the existence of culture among the native people. They may become quickly converted and later lead in the criticism of indigenous societies.

Colonial Bureaucracy and Creating Underdevelopment Dennis M. McCarthy, Re-thinking the Arusha Declaration Jeannette Hartmann, 1991 This book developed as part of the international conference of the 20 years of the Arusha Declaration in 1986 It is divided into four parts The introduction covers the discussion of the political events that took place after the international conference from 1986 to 1990 Part I consists of official speeches Part II looks at the problem of the state and the Arusha Declaration while Part III examines the economic and social development of Tanzania Part IV comprises the summary of the papers presented and ensuing debates Two positions emerged during the debates On the one hand some of the participants argued that there was need to take into consideration both the development experience which Tanzania has gained and the prevailing constraint and called for the Declaration to be revised Other participants on the other hand argued that the Declaration was still relevant and that it should be retained in its original tenor D I Hff Historical
