Color Psychology And Color Therapy Faber

Birren, 2013-11-04 American writer Faber Birren devoted his life to color and its effects on human life. After writing around 25 texts on the topic, it would be safe to say his work is considered highly among color experts and psychologists around the world. Birren's work has a strong focus on linking how humans perceive colors to how it makes them react. He writes: Good smelling colors are pink, lilac, orchid, cool green, aqua blue. Birren explores the work of several physicians, scientists, and doctors, mainly the German psychoanalyst and physician Felix Deutsch, whose findings throw important light not only on medical practice with references to color but on the whole psychology of color. Birren states that if a person prefers warmer colors such as hues of red and oranges, they are likely to be more aware of their social environment. He labels these as warm color dominant subjects. On the other hand, those preferring cooler colors such as blues and greens are categorized generally as cold color dominant subjects and are recognized as finding it challenging to adapt themselves to new environments and situations. By splitting people into separate categories based on their color preferences, Birren finds himself able to establish a greater understanding of their personalities and characteristics. One experiment Birren explores in his text, courtesy of Kurt Goldstein, involves a subject standing before a black wall with his eyes shut and arms outstretched to touch the wall in front. When the subject is influenced by a warm color such as red, his arms deviate away from each other; whereas when under the influence of a cooler color such as green or blue, even though the reaction is a subtle one, the subject will move his arms closer together. I find this experiment simple as it is to be fascinating in highlighting the strong effects colors have on our minds and bodies. As well as distinguishing the differences in people's character through his use of color psychology, Birren also touches on the effects colors can have on the mentally ill. This section was the most interesting and involved a series of complex experiments such as discovering which neurological disorders were linked to which colors. Courtesy of the work by Hans Huber, it was proven that patients suffering from manic tendencies preferred the color red, a symbol of blood and anger. Hysterical patients were more sensitive to green, perhaps as an escape. The color linked to paranoid subjects was found to be brown, and schizophrenics are sensitive to yellow. Birren states that persons troubled with nervous, neurotic, and mental psychotic disturbances are greatly affected by color and are responsive to it. Therefore, color becomes much more significant to them and affects them in a completely different way than those without such neurological disturbances. Chapter 12, Neurotics and Psychotics, is the most compelling in the text as it relates to my dissertation topic. After struggling to find texts specific to my research subject, this text and its contents came as a welcomed discovery, and I will be referring to Birren's work throughout my further research.

Colour Psychology Today June McLeod, 2016-12-09 Colour Psychology Today reveals new colour psychology information that comes from the author's pioneering research and studies on colour. The book discloses unique knowledge on how colour psychology impacts on the business world and the individual borne out of the author's extensive work as a colour consultant and trainer that spans more than thirty years. Colour Psychology Today is unlike any other colour psychology book available. It is a must have for colour enthusiasts, branding experts, marketers, advertising execs, graphic designers, and anyone who would like to expand and develop the application of colour in their field of work.

Encyclopedia of Color Science and Technology Renzo Shamey, 2023-09-29. This fully revised and expanded 2nd edition provides a single authoritative resource describing the concepts of color and the application of color science across research and industry. Significant changes for the 2nd edition include New and expanded sections on color engineering. More entries on fundamental concepts of color science and color terms. Many additional entries on specific materials. Further material on optical concepts and human visual perception. Additional articles on organisations, tools, and systems relevant to color. A new set of entries on 3D presentation of color. In addition, many of the existing entries have been revised and updated to ensure that the content of the encyclopedia is current and represents the state of the art. The work covers the full gamut of color: the fundamentals of color science, the physics and chemistry of color as it relates to optical phenomena and the human visual system, and colorants and materials. The measurement of color is described through entries on colorimetry, color spaces, color difference metrics, color appearance models, color order systems, and cognitive color. The encyclopedia also has extensive coverage of applications throughout industry, including color imaging, color capture, display, and printing, and descriptions of color encodings, color management, processing, color, and applications relating to color synthesis for computer graphics are included. The broad scope of the work is illustrated through entries on color in art, conservation, color, and architecture, color, and education, color, and culture, and biographies of some of the key figures involved in color research throughout history. With over 250 entries from color science researchers across academia and industry, this expanded 2nd edition of the Encyclopedia of Color Science and Technology remains the most important single resource in color science.
