May Friedman, Jill Andrew

Comcfemale Stories Female Bodies:

Body Stories May Friedman, Jill Andrew, 2020 Body stories capture a nuanced interconnected interactive and complex telling of our understanding perception and experience of and through our bodies Plenty has been published on body image but image suggests a static fixed body unmitigated through our social interactions and varying times and spaces This book is not a how to guide for fat confidence It s not a compendium of fat suffering It s simply a collection of narratives about what it s like to survive in a weight hating world It resists the ways that marginalized bodies are being written and researched and put into other people s ideas about our existence The stories in this book are celebratory and are painful They look at intersections of race and queerness they destabilize womanhood by presenting a range of possible female embodiments They explore issues of disability and madness The full range of possibilities that are collected here give a picture of what it means to live in a society with strong and powerful messages about size about normalcy about what a moral and healthy life and body look like This book is a snapshot of its place and time but these stories remind us that we re here to stay The body stories will change but we will keep owning our own narratives While story especially written by women is often seen as outside the academic canon these stories these creative offerings are theory are research and are activism They are nothing less than the blueprint for liberation Writing about fat and about bodies outside of medicalized narratives without ignoring the impact of race sexuality class ability gender fashion appearance and beyond is radical and rigorous It is impossible to think about the future without wishing for liberation Liberation can come in many forms It can mean an awareness the ability to confront The stories in this book display the ways that liberation isn t a finish line or a thing we can complete rather it is a million small actions and understandings in aid of a renewed and hopeful world
