Internal Migration, Crime, and Punishment in Contemporary China Anqi Shen, 2018-11-15 This work investigates inequality and social exclusion in contemporary Chinese society specifically in the context of urbanization migration and crime Economic reforms started in the late 1970s post Mao fuelled a trend of urbanization and mass migration within China largely from rural areas to more economically developed urban regions With this migration came new challenges in a rapidly changing society Researchers have extensively studied the rural to urban human movement social changes inequality and its impact on individuals and society as a whole This volume provides a new perspective on this issue It forges a link between internal migration inequality social exclusion and crime in the context of China through qualitative research into the impact of this phenomenon on individuals lives Using a series of case studies drawn from interviews with inmates men and women in a large Chinese prison it focuses on migrant offenders subjective experiences and analyses issues from the rarely heard perspectives of migrant lawbreakers themselves The research demonstrates how factors including the hukou system rural urban class and gender inequalities prejudices against rural migrants and other structural problems often lead to migrant offending The author argues that to mitigate the effects of criminalisation the root causes of these problems should be examined emphasizing radical reforms to the hukou policy cultural change in urban society to welcome newcomers positive programs to integrate migrant workers into urban societies and improve their opportunities rather than inflicting harsher penalties or reducing migration While the research is based in China it has clear implications for other regions of the world which are experiencing similar tensions related to national and international migration This work will be of interest to researchers in criminology and criminal justice particularly with an interest in Asia as well as those in related fields such as sociology law and social justice
