Foreign Correspondence John Maxwell Hamilton, Regina G. Lawrence, 2013-09-13 Despite the importance of foreign news its history transformation and indeed its future have not been much studied. The scholarly community often calls attention to journalism's shortcomings covering the world yet the topic has not been systematically examined across countries or over time. The need to redress this neglect and the desire to assess the impact of new media technologies on the future of journalism including foreign correspondence provide the motivation for this stimulating exciting and thought provoking book. In an increasingly globalized era journalism is being transformed by the effortlessly quick sharing of information across national boundaries. As such we need to reconsider foreign correspondence and explore where such reporting is headed. This book discusses the current state and future prospects for foreign correspondence across the full range of media platforms and assesses developments in the reporting of overseas news for audiences governments and foreign policy in both contemporary and historical settings around the globe.
