Rider Haggard, 2014-08-29 There are things and there are faces which when felt or seen for the first time stamp themselves upon the mind like a sun image on a sensitized plate and there remain unalterably fixed To take the instance of a face we may never see it again or it may become the companion of our life but there the picture is just as we first knew it the same smile or frown the same look unvarying and unvariable reminding us in the midst of change of the indestructible nature of every experience act and aspect of our days For that which has been is since the past knows no corruption but lives eternally in its frozen and completed self These are somewhat large thoughts to be born of a small matter but they rose up spontaneously in the mind of a soldierly looking man who on the particular evening when this history opens was leaning over a gate in an Eastern county lane staring vacantly at a field of ripe corn feared of evildoers Men felt this and he was popular among those who knew him in his service though not in any hail fellow well met kind of way But among women he was not popular As a rule they both feared and disliked him His presence jarred upon the frivolity of the lighter members of their sex who dimly realised that his nature was antagonistic and the more solid ones could not understand him Perhaps this was the reason why Colonel Quaritch had never married had never even had a love affair since he was five and twenty
