Colonization Of Unfamiliar Landscapes The Archaeology Of Adaptation:

Colonization of Unfamiliar Landscapes Marcy Rockman,James Steele,2003 A series of case studies examines the archaeological evidence for and interpretations of landscape learning from the movement of the first pre modern humans into Europe to the English colonists at Jamestown

The Colonization of Unfamiliar Landscapes Marcy Rockman,James Steele,2003-04-10 This innovative and important volume presents the archaeological and anthropological foundations of the landscape learning process Contributions apply the related fields of ethnography cognitive psychology and historical archaeology to the issues of individual exploration development of trail systems folk knowledge social identity and the role of the frontier in the growth of the modern world A series of case studies examines the archaeological evidence for and interpretations of landscape learning from the movement of the first pre modern humans into Europe peoplings of the Old and New World at the end of the Ice Age and colonization of the Pacific to the English colonists at Jamestown The final chapters summarize the implications of the landscape learning idea for our understanding of human history and set out a framework for future research

Archaeologies of Early Modern Spanish Colonialism Sandra Montón-Subías,María Cruz Berrocal,Apen Ruiz Martínez,2016-02-22 Archaeologies of Early Modern Spanish Colonialism illustrates how archaeology contributes to the knowledge of early modern Spanish colonialism and the first globalization of the 16th and 17th centuries Through a range of specific case studies this book offers a global comparative perspective on colonial processes and colonial situations and the ways in which they were experienced by the different peoples But we also focus on marginal unsuccessful colonial episodes Thus some of the papers deal with very brief colonial events even marginal in some cases considered failures by the Spanish crown or even undertook without their consent These short events are usually overlooked by traditional historiography which is why archaeological research is particularly important in these cases since archaeological remains may be the only type of evidence that stands as proof of these colonial events At the same time it critically examines the construction of categories and discourses of colonialism and questions the ideological underpinnings of the source material required to address such a vast issue Accordingly the book strikes a balance between theoretical methodological and empirical issues integrated to a lesser or greater extent in most of the chapters

Evolutionary and Interpretive Archaeologies Ethan Cochrane,Andrew Gardner,2016-09-16 This collection of original articles compares various key archaeological topics agency violence social groups diffusion from evolutionary and interpretive perspectives These two strands represent the major current theoretical poles in the discipline By comparing and contrasting the insights they provide into major archaeological themes this volume demonstrates the importance of theoretical frameworks in archaeological interpretations Chapter authors discuss relevant Darwinian or interpretive theory with short archaeological and anthropological case studies to illustrate the substantive conclusions produced The book will advance debate and contribute to a better understanding of the goals and research strategies that comprise these distinct research traditions

Archaeology and Apprenticeship Willeke Wendrich, 2013-01-01 Archaeologists study a wide array of material remains to propose conclusions about non material aspects of culture The intricacies of these findings have increased over recent decades but only limited attention has been paid to what the archaeological record can tell us about the transfer of cultural knowledge through apprenticeship Apprenticeship is broadly defined as the transmission of culture through a formal or informal teacher pupil relationship This collection invites a wide discussion citing case studies from all over the world and yet focuses the scholarship into a concise set of contributions The chapters in this volume demonstrate how archaeology can benefit greatly from the understanding of the social dimensions of knowledge transfer This book also examines apprenticeship in archaeology against a backdrop of sociological and cognitive psychology literature to enrich the understanding of the relationship between material remains and enculturation Each of the authors in this collection looks specifically at how material remains can reveal several specific aspects of ancient cultures What is the human potential for learning How do people learn Who is teaching Why are they learning What are the results of such learning How do we recognize knowledge transfer in the archaeological record These fundamental questions are featured in various forms in all chapters of the book With case studies from the American Southwest Alaska Egypt Ancient Greece and Mesopotamia this book will have broad appeal for scholars particularly those concerned with cultural transmission and traditions of learning and education all over the world International Handbook of Historical Archaeology Teresita Majewski, David Gaimster, 2009-06-07 In studying the past archaeologists have focused on the material remains of our ancestors Prehistorians generally have only artifacts to study and rely on the diverse material record for their understanding of past societies and their behavior Those involved in studying historically documented cultures not only have extensive material remains but also contemporary texts images and a range of investigative technologies to enable them to build a broader and more reflexive picture of how past societies communities and individuals operated and behaved Increasingly historical archaeology refers not to a particular period place or a method but rather an approach that interrogates the tensions between artifacts and texts irrespective of context In short historical archaeology provides direct evidence for how humans have shaped the world we live in today Historical archaeology is a branch of global archaeology that has grown in the last 40 years from its North American base into an increasingly global community of archaeologists each studying their area of the world in a historical context Where historical archaeology started as part of the study of the post Columbian societies of the United States and Canada it has now expanded to interface with the post medieval archaeologies of Europe and the diverse post imperial experiences of Africa Latin America and Australasia The 36 essays in the International Handbook of Historical Archaeology have been specially commissioned from the leading researchers in their fields creating a wide ranging digest of the increasingly global field of historical archaeology The volume is divided into two sections the first reviewing the key themes issues and approaches of historical archaeology today and the second containing a series of case studies charting the development and current state of historical archaeological practice around the world This key reference work captures the energy and diversity of this global discipline today

Lithic Materials and Paleolithic Societies Brian Adams, Brooke Blades, 2009-05-06 Lithic Materials and Paleolithic Societies provides a detailed examination of the Paleolithic procurement and utilization of the most durable material in the worldwide archaeological record The volume addresses sites ranging in age from some of the earliest hominin occupations in eastern and southern Africa to late Pleistocene and post Pleistocene occupations in North American and Australia The Early Paleolithic in India and the Near East the Middle Paleolithic in Europe and the Late Paleolithic in Europe and eastern Asia are also considered The authors include established researchers who provide important synthetic statements updated with new information Recent data are reported often by younger scholars who are becoming respected members of the international research community The authors represent research traditions from nine countries and therefore provide insight into the scholarly present as well as the Paleolithic past Attempts are frequently made to relate lithic procurement and utilization to the organization of societies and even broader concerns of hominin behaviour The volume re evaluates existing interpretations in some instances by updating previous work of the authors and offers provocative new interpretations that at times call into question some basic assumptions of the Paleolithic This book will be invaluable reading for advanced students and researchers in the fields of palaeolithic archaeology geoarchaeology and anthropology change during rapid climate shifts and the use of tree rings in inferring age and past hydroclimatic conditions Three chapters address vertebrate paleontology and the extinctions of large mammals at the end of the last glaciation beetle assemblages and the inferences they permit about past conditions and the peopling of North America A final chapter addresses the numerical modeling of Quaternary climates and the role paleoclimatic studies and climatic modeling has in predicting future response of the Earth's climate system to the changes we have wrought

Making Journeys Catriona D. Gibson, Kerri Cleary, Catherine J. Frieman, 2021-02-01 Despite notable explorations of past dynamics much of the archaeological literature on mobility remains dominated by accounts of earlier prehistoric gatherer hunters or the long distance exchange of materials Refinements of scientific dating techniques isotope trace element and aDNA analyses in conjunction with phenomenological investigation computer aided landscape modeling and GIS style approaches to large data sets allow us to follow the movement of people animals and objects in the past with greater precision and conviction One route into exploring mobility in the past may be through exploring the movements and biographies of artifacts Challenges lie not only in tracing the origins and final destinations of objects but in the less tangible in between journeys and the hands they passed through Biographical approaches to artifacts include the recognition that culture contact and hybridity affect material culture in meaningful ways Furthermore discrete and bounded sites still dominate archaeological inquiry leaving the spaces and connectivities between features and settlements unmapped These are linked to an under explored middle spectrum of mobility a range nestled between everyday movements and one off ambitious voyages We wish to explore how these travels involved entangled meshworks of people animals objects knowledge sets and identities By crossing and re crossing cultural contextual and tenorial boundaries such journeys could create diasporic and novel communities ideas and materialities

Prehistoric Journeys Vicki Cummings, Robert Johnston, 2007 This collection of thirteen papers focuses on what it meant to be on the move at different times in prehistory Ideas of journeys and travel are integral to many traditions of interpreting the prehistoric archaeological record Travel was after all the driving force behind the formation and transformation of identity How ironic it is that this feature of prehistory has been so overlooked when the ancient world's discovery in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries occurred primarily as the result of travel The contributors to this volume see journeys as an integral part of prehistoric life socially meaningful which must be understood within their pre historic contexts

Investigating Prehistoric Hunter-gatherer Identities H. L. Cobb, 2005 Edited by H L Cobb F Coward L Grimshaw and S Price This volume stems from sessions at the 2004 Theoretical Archaeology Conference at Glasgow University entitled Hunter Gatherers in Early Prehistory and Hunting for Meaning Interpretive Approaches to the Mesolithic The sessions came about as a response to a continuing lack of appreciation of new developments in theoretical approaches to the archaeology of prehistoric hunter gatherers both in the Pleistocene and Holocene
