Color Categories in Thought and Language C. L. Hardin, Luisa Maffi, 1997-08-14 A distinguished cross disciplinary reassessment of the work of Berlin and Kay on colour categories      Ten Lectures on Language, Cognition, and Language Acquisition Melissa Bowerman, 2018-07-17 In her Beijing lectures Melissa Bowerman presents a lucid introduction and account of her research on a range of topics how children acquire the semantics of spatial terms how they construct categories and acquire the semantics of nouns and how they master the semantics of verbs in early language acquisition Bowerman also covers the learning of argument structure and expressions of end state with special attention to the adult speech that guides children and hence also the role of typology in acquisition how cross linguistic variation affects for example how speakers represent cutting and breaking in different languages and the relation of the Whorfian Hypothesis to cross linguistic variations in the semantics of languages Bowerman's overriding concern throughout is with how children come to master the first language being spoken to them by their parents and caregivers      The semantics of Color Sharing The Laboratory with Color Vision Lucia Ronchi, 2014-04-01      Anthropology of Color Robert E. MacLaury, Galina V. Paramei, Don Dedrick, 2007 The field of color categorization has always been intrinsically multi and inter disciplinary since its beginnings in the nineteenth century The main contribution of this book is to foster a new level of integration among different approaches to the anthropological study of color The editors have put great effort into bringing together research from anthropology linguistics psychology semiotics and a variety of other fields by promoting the exploration of the different but interacting and complementary ways in which these various perspectives model the domain of color experience By so doing they significantly promote the emergence of a coherent field of the anthropology of color      How Colours Matter to Philosophy Marcos Silva, 2017-11-23 This edited volume explores the different and seminal ways colours matter to philosophy Each chapter provides an insightful analysis of one or more cases in which colours raise philosophical problems in different areas and periods of philosophy This historically informed discussion examines both logical and linguistic aspects covering such areas as the mind aesthetics and the foundations of mathematics The international contributors look at traditional epistemological and metaphysical issues on the subjectivity and objectivity of colours In addition they also assess phenomenological problems typical of the continental tradition and contemporary problems in the philosophy of mind The chapters include coverage of such topics as Newton's and Goethe's theory of light and colours how primary qualities are qualitative and colours are primary explaining colour phenomenology and colour in cognition language and philosophy This book beautifully prepares the ground for the next steps in our research on and philosophising about colour Daniel D Hutto University of Wollongong It is not an overstatement to say that How Colours to Philosophy is a ground breaking publication Mazviita Chirimuuta University of Pittsburgh Anyone interested in philosophical issues about color will find it highly stimulating Martine Nida R melin Universit de Fribourg The high quality papers included in this anthology succeed admirably

Color Perception. Is Whorf right? Do color terms affect color perception? Melissa Grönebaum,2014-02-04 Seminar paper from the year 2011 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Other grade 1.3 University of Kassel language English abstract The Question if color perception is shaped by language or language is shaped by color perception is a classic nature versus nurture universalists versus relativity debate The Whorf hypothesis suggests the idea that humans at least trichromats view the world filtered through the lens of their native language The Universalists view instead holds that language does not affect the perception of color but the other way around Over the years both of these standardly opposed views have oscillated The following paper will review recent data and argue that none of the classic views can be fully supported. Regarded by itself, neither the one nor the other view is an answer to the question above. Moreover, the right answer should be regarded as a relativists/universalists symbiosis. Furthermore, in this paper, it will be analyzed that Whorf was half right since tests on memory and reaction time have shown that language affects perception only in the right visual field.

Generality Aspects of Color Naming and Color Meaning Charles Taft, 1997      Studies in Language, 2009      Journal of the Optical Society of America, 2005      The Harvard Review of Philosophy, 1999      A Basic Course in Anthropological Linguistics Marcel Danesi, 2004

Language can be studied from several angles. The one that focuses on the relation between language, thought, and culture is known as anthropological linguistics (AL). This text constitutes a basic introduction to the subject matter and techniques of AL. Traditionally, anthropological linguists have aimed to document and study the languages of indigenous cultures, especially North American ones. Today, however, the purview of this exciting science has been extended considerably to encompass the study of language as a general cultural phenomenon and to determine genealogical relations among languages so as to recreate ancient cultures through them. The overall objective of A Basic Course in Anthropological Linguistics is to show how the technical methodology of linguistic analysis can help students gain a deeper understanding of language as a strategy for classifying the world. The text's underlying premise is that the distinction between language and knowledge is hardly ever clear-cut. Indeed, the two enter into a constant synergy, a synergy that defines the human condition.
