Ulrike Brandt, 2012-12-17 A concise systematic introduction to natural and artificial lighting design More than any building material light produces spatial effects generates moods and stages architectural designs In well lit spaces we feel good and we are capable and effective light promotes health Moreover especially in office buildings the combination of a sensible natural lighting design with a corresponding approach to artificial lighting is a decisive factor in energy conservation Assembled by experienced authors and experts from the worlds of practice and teaching this new volume in the series Detail Practice provides an introduction to the most important aspects of natural and artificial lighting design In addition to straightforward planning rules such as ground plan design building orientation and the structuring of facades it also introduces and explains current natural and artificial lighting systems with the help of example projects ESSE 2017

Yong Wang, 2017-10-23 Environmental science is an interdisciplinary academic field that integrates physical biological and information sciences to study and solve environmental problems ESSE The International Conference on Environmental Science and Sustainable Energy provides a platform for experts professionals and researchers to share updated information and stimulate the communication with each other In 2017 it was held in Suzhou China June 23 25 2017 Urban Lighting, Light Pollution and Society Josiane Meier, Ute Hasenöhl, Katharina Krause, Merle Pottharst, 2014-10-24 After decades in the shadows urban lighting is re emerging as a matter of public debate Long standing truths are increasingly questioned as a confluence of developments affects lighting itself and the way it is viewed Light has become an integral element of place making and energy saving initiatives alike Rapidly evolving lighting technologies are opening up new possibilities but also posing new challenges to planners and awareness is growing that artificial illumination is not purely benign but can actually constitute a form of pollution As a result public policy frameworks incentives and initiatives are undergoing a phase of innovation and change that will affect how cities are lit for years to come The first comprehensive compilation of current scientific discussions on urban lighting and light pollution from a social science and humanities perspective Urban Lighting Light Pollution and Society contributes to an evolving international debate on an increasingly controversial topic The contributions draw a rich panorama of the manifold discourses connected with artificial illumination in the past and present from early attempts to promote new lighting technologies in the late 19th and early 20th centuries to current debates on restricting its excessive usage in public space and the protection of darkness By bringing together a cross section of current findings and debates on urban lighting and light pollution from a wide variety of disciplines it reflects that artificial lighting is multifaceted in its qualities utilisation and interpretation Including case studies from the United States Europe and the UK Urban Lighting Light Pollution and Society is one of the first to take a serious assessment of light pollution and places and is a valuable resource for planners policy makers and students in related subjects
