Combat Aircraft of World War Two, 1977 Combat Biplanes of World War II Peter C. Smith, 2015 The era of the combat biplane is usually thought to have been between 1914 and 1938 By the outbreak of World War II most of the advanced air forces of the world had moved on to monoplane aircraft for their front line battle forces both in bomber and fighter capacities Yet despite this many biplanes did still survive both in front line service and in numerous subsidiary roles and not just as training machines but as fully operational warplanes Thus in 1939 the majority of major European powers still retained some albeit few biplane aircraft Sadly and as an indictment of failed British Government defense policies it was Great Britain who still had the bulk of such obsolescent combat aircraft machines like the Gladiator Swordfish Walrus Vildebeeste and Audax for example while the inferior Albacore meant to replace the Swordfish was still yet to enter service Germany had relegated most of her biplane designs to secondary roles but they still managed to conduct missions in which biplanes like the He 50 He 51 and Hs 120 excelled Both France and Italy had biplanes in active service Mussolini s Regia Aeronautica attaching great importance to the type as a fighter aircraft as late as 1941 while the Soviet Union also retained some machines like the Po 2 in front line service right through the war and beyond In addition a whole range of smaller nations utilized biplanes built for larger combatants in their own air forces By the time Japan and the United States entered the war two years later they had mainly rid themselves of biplanes but even here a few specialized types lingered on This book describes a selection of these gallant old warriors of all nations They represent the author s own personal selection from a surprisingly large range of aircraft that despite all predictions fought hard and well in World War II
