Combat Engineer, Pacific Theater Jay Divine, 2016-05-20 Combat Engineer Pacific Theater looks at the daily lives of ordinary young men who found themselves with a unique job to do at an extraordinary time and place in history. It tells the mostly untold story of the army's combat engineering battalions in the Pacific in World War II. As their name implies, the role of these soldiers was unique. They were trained both in construction and in combat and were called upon to do both. With every step of the way, contested their job was to build an infrastructure for crossing the world's biggest ocean to take the fight to an implacable enemy where he lived. The focus is the experiences of the men in the ranks of the Thirty Fourth Engineer Combat Battalion, Part of the Army's Twenty Seventh Infantry Division, the battalion participated in two of the three largest and bloodiest amphibious assaults in military history: those of Saipan and Okinawa. US Combat Engineer 1941-45 Gordon L. Rottman, 2012-06-20 At its peak in World War II, the United States Army contained over 700 engineer battalions along with numerous independent brigades and regiments. The specialized soldiers of the Engineers were tasked with a wide variety of crucially important tasks including river bridging, camouflage, airfield construction, and water and petroleum supply. However, despite their important support roles, the engineers were often employed on the front lines fighting beside the general infantry in the desperate battles of the European theatre. This book covers the role of these soldiers from their recruitment and training through their various support missions and combat experiences, forming an account of what it was truly like to be a combat engineer in World War II. A Combat Engineer with Patton's Army Lois Lembo, Leon Reed, 2020-06-09 An engaging and often frightening story of a member of the 305th Engineering Battalion of the 80th Infantry Division. Andrew Z. Adkins III, coauthor of You Can't Get Much Closer Than This: A Combat Engineer with Patton's Army, is the untold story of Frank Lembo, one of George Patton's men who helped move the American command in the battle of Argentan in the Normandy Campaign, in the high speed pursuit of the German Wehrmacht eastward across France, and in the brutal battles waged during the Battle of the Bulge and during the final combats along the borders of the collapsing Reich. Throughout his time in Europe, Lembo maintained a running commentary of his experiences with Betty Craig, his fiancée and future wife. This extensive correspondence provides a unique eyewitness view of the life and work of a combat engineer under wartime conditions. As a squad and later platoon leader, Frank and his comrades cleared mines, conducted reconnaissance behind enemy lines, built bridges, and performed other tasks necessary to support the movement of the 317th, 318th, and 319th Infantry Regiments of the Blue Ridge Division, Patton's workhorses, if not his glamour boys. Frank's letters go beyond his direct combat experiences to include the camaraderie among the GIs, living conditions, weather, and the hijinks that helped keep the constant threat of death at bay. His letters also worked to reassure Betty with hopeful dreams for their future together. Including dozens of previously unpublished photographs, A Combat Engineer with Patton's Army offers the rare perspective of what day to day warfare at the ground level looked like in the European Theater through the eyes of one of the
