Houghton,2004 This dissertation identifies policies and organizational options at the local level that could save lives and reduce injury likely to occur from an act of chemical terrorism It seeks out low cost ways to improve the current performance level in responding to chemical terrorism using Los Angeles as a case study The dissertation attempts to determine the level of risk of chemical terrorism in Los Angeles and identify the anticipated magnitude for which emergency responders and decisionmakers should plan Then it considers current capability and performance levels in chemical terrorism response and determines a performance goal for response to the planning magnitude Through modeling and simulation the dissertation presents low cost options in equipment training organization and doctrine that could improve the response to a chemical terrorist event Finally the dissertation examines these options in terms of budget considerations in Los Angeles The dissertation s findings point to decentralizing counter chemical terrorism equipment throughout the Los Angeles metropolitan area reformulating those doctrinal policies that may inadvertently slow the mitigation process establishing low cost training methods to enhance the specialized knowledge needed to respond effectively putting policies in place to accelerate the decontamination process and focusing on an all hazards approach to preparedness

Defending the American Homeland Heritage Foundation (Washington, D.C.). Homeland Security Task Force, L. Paul Bremer, Edwin Meese, 2002 The terrorist attacks of September 11 struck at the very heart of the American homeland It was a new form of total war in the age of terrorism and it put all Americans on notice that the United States is dangerously vulnerable and that new means are urgently needed to strengthen the security of the homeland The Heritage Foundation Homeland Security Task Force was formed days after the September 11 attacks to meet this urgent need This comprehensive study incorporates the recommendations of the Task Force for securing a vulnerable America Provided by publisher Combating Terrorism: Opportunities To Improve Domestic Preparedness Program Focus And Efficiency... 161384...
