Heather Pinson, 2010-12-01 Typically a photograph of a jazz musician has several formal prerequisites black and white film an urban setting in the mid twentieth century and a black man standing playing or sitting next to his instrument That s the jazz archetype that photography created Author K Heather Pinson discovers how such a steadfast script developed visually and what this convention meant for the music Album covers magazines books documentaries art photographs posters and various other visual extensions of popular culture formed the commonly held image of the jazz player Through assimilation there emerged a generalized composite of how mainstream jazz looked and sounded Pinson evaluates representations of jazz musicians from 1945 to 1959 concentrating on the seminal role played by Herman Leonard b 1923 Leonard s photographic depictions of African American jazz musicians in New York not only created a visual template of a black musician of the 1950s but also became the standard configuration of the music s neoclassical sound today To discover how the image of the musician affected mainstream jazz Pinson examines readings from critics musicians and educators as well as interviews musical scores recordings transcriptions liner notes and oral narratives Photography, Early Cinema and Colonial Modernity Robert Dixon, 2012-01-15 Photography Early Cinema and Colonial Modernity is not a biography of Frank Hurley the man it is instead an examination of the social life of the many marvellous and meaningful things he made as a professional photographer and film maker The focus of this volume surrounds the media events that encompassed these various creations what Hurley called his synchronized lecture entertainments These media events were at once national and international they involved Hurley in an entire culture industry that was constantly in movement along global lines of travel and communication This raises complex questions both about the authorship of Hurley s photographic and filmic texts which were often produced and presented by other people and about their ontology as they were often in a state of reassemblage in response to changing market opportunities This unique study re imagines from inside the quiet and stillness of the archive the prior social life enjoyed by Hurley s creations amidst the complicated topography of the early twentieth century s rapidly

internationalizing mass media landscape As a way to conceive of that space and of the social life of the people and things within it this study uses the concept of colonial modernity
