Rossiter, 2012-04-02 This survey of female scientists in recent

American history offers compelling data alongside the multiple stories of individual women. Science The third volume of Margaret W. Rossiter's landmark survey of the history of American women scientists focuses on their pioneering efforts and contributions from 1972 to the present. Central to this story are the struggles and successes of women scientists in the era of affirmative action. Scores of previously isolated women scientists were suddenly energized to do things they had rarely if ever done before. Form organizations and recruit new members start rosters and projects put out newsletters confront authorities and even fight and win lawsuits. Rossiter follows the major activities of these groups in several fields from engineering to the physical biological and social sciences and their campaigns to raise consciousness see legislation enforced lobby for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment and serve as watchdogs of the media. This comprehensive volume also covers the changing employment circumstances in the federal government academia industry and the nonprofit sector and discusses contemporary battles to increase the number of women members of the National Academy of Science and women presidents of scientific societies. In writing this book Rossiter mined nearly one hundred previously unexamined archival collections and more than fifty oral histories. With the thoroughness and resourcefulness that characterize the earlier volumes she recounts the rich history of the courageous and resolute women determined to realize their scientific ambitions. Feminism and Science Nancy Tuana, 1989-11-22 thoughtful critiques of the myriad issues between women and science. Belles Lettres Outstanding collection of essays that raise the fundamental questions of gender in what we have been taught are objective sciences. WATERwheel all of the articles are well written informative and convincing. Admirable editorial work makes this anthology unusually helpful for scholars and students. Highly recommended. Choice Questioning the objectivity of scientific inquiry this volume addresses the scope of gender bias in science. The contributors examine the ways in which science is affected by and reinforces sexist biases. The essays reveal science to be a cultural institution structured by the political social and economic values of the culture within which it is practiced. Ideas have been nuanced developed and revised but still the outline of argumentation theory has been recognizable for centuries or so it has seemed to Western scholars. The 2019 Alta Conference on Argumentation co-sponsored by the National Communication Association and the American Forensic Association aimed to question the generality of these intellectual traditions. This resulting collection of essays deals with the possibility of having local theories of argument local to a particular time a particular kind of issue a particular place or a particular culture Many of the papers argue for reconsidering basic ideas about arguing to represent the uniqueness of some moment or location of discourse Other scholars are more comfortable with the Western traditions and find them congenial to the analysis of arguments that originate in discernibly distinct circumstances The papers represent different methodologies cover the experiences of different nations at different times examine varying sorts of argumentative events speeches court decisions food choices and sound explore particular personal identities and the issues highlighted by them and have different overall orientations to doing argumentation scholarship Considered together the essays do not generate one simple conclusion but they stimulate reflection about the particularity or generality of the experience of arguing and therefore the scope of our theories
