Contested Commodities:

Contested Commodities Margaret Jane Radin, 2001-11-05 How far should society go in permitting people to buy and sell goods and services Radin addresses this controversial issue in an exploration of contested commodification As a philosophical pragmatist the author argues for an incomplete commodification in which some contested things can be bought and sold but only under regulated circumstances

Markets with Limits James Stacey Taylor, 2022-03-02 In Markets with Limits James Stacey Taylor argues that current debates over the moral limits of markets have derailed He argues that they focus on a market critical position that almost nobody holds That certain goods and services can be freely given away but should never be bought or sold And he argues that they focus on a type of argument for this position that there is reason to believe that nobody holds That trade in certain goods or services is wrongful solely because of what it would communicate Taylor puts the debates over the moral limits of markets back on track He develops a taxonomy of the positions that are actually held by critics of markets and clarifies the role played in current moral and political philosophy by arguments that justify or condemn certain actions owing in part to what they communicate Taylor argues that the debates have derailed because they were conducted in accord with market rather than academic norms and that this demonstrates that market thinking should not govern academic research Markets with Limits concludes with suggestions as to how to encourage academics to conduct research in accord with academic norms and hence improve its quality Key features Provides original suggestions concerning how to improve the exegetical quality of academic research Systematically identifies the primary exegetical errors and the ways in which these errors have adversely influenced current debates that Jason Brennan and Peter Jaworski made in their influential book Markets Without Limits Argues that despite the current widespread view that semiotic objections to markets are widespread in the literature they are in actuality rare to nonexistent Offers an up to date taxonomy of the current arguments in the various debates over both the ontological and the moral limits of markets Provides an extensive overview of mistaken claims that have been made and propagated in various academic literatures

Technofutures, Nature and the Sacred Celia Deane-Drummond, Sigurd Bergmann, Bronislaw Szerszynski, 2016-03-03 The capacity of human beings to invent construct and use technical artifacts is a hugely consequential factor in the evolution of society and in the entangled relations between humans other creatures and their natural environments Moving from a critical consideration of theories to narratives about technology and then to particular and specific practices Technofutures Nature and the Sacred seeks to arrive at a genuinely transdisciplinary perspective focusing attention on the intersection between technology religion and society and using insights from the environmental humanities It works from both theoretical and practical contexts by using newly emerging case studies including geo engineering and soil carbon technologies and breaks open new ground by engaging theological scientific philosophical and cultural aspects of the technology religion nature nexus Encouraging us to reflect on the significance and place of religious beliefs in dealing with new technologies and engaging critical theory common in sociological political and literary discourses the authors explore the implicit religious claims embedded in technology Claiming Power Over Life Mark J. Hanson, 2001-10-03 Developments in biotechnology such as cloning and the decoding of the human genome are generating questions and choices that traditionally have fallen within the realm of religion and philosophy the definition of human life human vs divine control of nature the relationship between human and non human life and the intentional manipulation of the mechanisms of life and death In Claiming Power over Life eight contributors challenge policymakers to recognize the value of religious views on biotechnology and discuss how best to integrate the wisdom of the Christian and Jewish traditions into public policy debates Arguing that civic discourse on the subject has been impoverished by an inability to accommodate religious insights productively they identify the ways in which religious thought can contribute to policymaking Likewise the authors challenge religious leaders and scholars to learn about biotechnology address the central issues it raises and participate constructively in the moral debates it engenders The book will be of value to policymakers religious leaders ethicists and all those interested in issues surrounding the intersection of religion and biotechnology policy Rethinking Commodification Martha Ertman, Joan C. Williams, 2005-08 In a world that is often ruled by buyers and sellers those things that are often considered priceless become objects to be marketed and from which to earn a profit The Institutional Tradition in Labor Economics Dell P. Champlin, Janet T. Knoedler, 2018-10-24 While there are many economists in schools government unions and non profit organizations working in the institutionalist tradition there has been no book that describes this tradition until now Editors Champlin and Knoedler have brought together prominent labor economists highly respected institutional economists and newer scholars working on such compelling issues as immigration wage discrimination and living wages Their essays portray the institutionalist tradition in labor as it exists today as well as its historical and theoretical origins The result is a major contribution to the literature of labor economics institutionalist economics and the history of economic thought Perfectionism and Contemporary Feminist Values Kimberly A. Yuracko, 2003 Although formal barriers to women s social and political participation have crumbled society remains to a significant degree gendered in the roles that women and men play Women s and men s choices regarding work and family are largely responsible for maintaining and reinforcing the differences While feminists recognize the need to criticize women s choices too often they focus on restrictive conditions rather than the choices themselves Kimberly A Yuracko argues instead that encouraging women to make choices in accordance with a grounded and well defined conception of perfectionism a philosophy concerned with human flourishing is the most effective way to redress persistent gender inequality To this end Yuracko seeks not only to expose the perfectionism underlying current choice critiques but to articulate a concrete set of feminist perfectionist principles that would improve the quality of individual women s lives and improve the social standing of women as a whole Exploitation Ruth J.
