Contesting Citizenship In Urban China:

Contesting Citizenship in Urban China Dorothy J. Solinger, 1999-05-17 Post Mao market reforms in China have led to a massive migration of rural peasants toward the cities Denied urban residency this floating population provides labour but loses out on government benefits This study challenges the notion that markets promote rights and legal equality Rural Women in Urban China Tamara Jacka, 2005 Based on in depth ethnographic research and using an approach that seeks to understand how migration is experienced by the migrants themselves this is a fascinating study of the experiences of women in rural China who joined the vast migration to Beijing and other cities at the end of the twentieth century It focuses on the experiences of rural urban migrants the particular ways in which they talk about those experiences and how those experiences affect their sense of identity Through first hand accounts of actual migrant workers the author provides valuable insights into how rural women negotiate rural urban experiences how they respond to migration and life in the city and how that experience shapes their world view values and relations with others The book makes a major contribution to our understanding of the relationship between gender and social change and of the ways in which globalization and modernity are experienced at the most personal level Practicing Citizenship in Contemporary China Sophia Woodman, Zhonghua Guo, 2020-04-02 This book examines citizenship as practiced in China today from a variety of angles Citizenship in China and elsewhere in the Global South has often been perceived as either a distorted echo of the real democratic version in Europe and North America or an orientalized other that defines what citizenship is not By contrast this book sees Chinese citizenship as an aspect of a connected modernity that is still unfolding The book focuses on three key tensions a state preference for sedentarism and governing citizens in place vs growing mobility sometimes facilitated by the state a perception that state building and development requires a strong state vs ideas and practices of participatory citizenship and submission of the individual to the collective state community village family etc vs the rising salience of conceptions of self development and self making projects Examining manifestations of these tensions can contribute to thinking about citizenship beyond China including the role of the local in forming citizenship orders how individualization works in the absence of liberal individualism and how social citizenship is increasingly becoming a reward to good citizens rather than a mechanism for achieving citizen equality This book was originally published as a Special Issue of the journal Citizenship Studies

Marginalization in Urban China F. Wu, C. Webster, 2010-10-28 This book covers social inequalities in Chinese cities and provides comparative perspectives on inequality and social polarization neoliberalization and the poor the change of property rights rural to urban migration and migrants enclaves deprivation and residential segregation state social security and reemployment training programs The Anthropology of Citizenship Sian Lazar, 2013-11-11 The Anthropology of Citizenship introduces the theoretical foundations of and cutting edge approaches to citizenship in the contemporary world in local national and global contexts Key readings provide a cross cultural perspective on citizenship practices and an individual citizen's relationship with the state Introduces a range of exciting and cutting edge approaches to citizenship in the contemporary world Provides key readings for students and researchers who wish to gain an understanding of citizenship practices and an individual's relationship with the state in a global context Offers an anthropological perspective on citizenship the self and political agency with a focus on encounters between citizens and the state in education law development and immigration policy Provides students with an understanding of the theoretical foundations of citizenship as characterized by liberal and civic republican ideas of political belonging and exclusion Explores how citizenship is constructed at different scales and in different spaces Twenty five key writings identify what is a new and vibrant subfield within politics and anthropological research

The China Price Alexandra Harney, 2008-03-27 In this landmark work of investigative reporting former Financial Times correspondent Alexandra Harney uncovers a story of immense significance to us all how China's factory economy gains a competitive edge by selling out its workers environment and future Harney's firsthand reporting brings us face to face with a world in which intense pricing pressure from Western companies combines with ubiquitous corruption and a lack of transparency to exact a staggering toll in human misery and environmental damage This eye opening expose offers for the first time an intimate look at the defining business story of our time

How Ideas Shape Urban Political Development Richardson Dilworth, Timothy P. R. Weaver, 2020-06-12 A collection of international case studies that demonstrate the importance of ideas to urban political development Ideas interests and institutions are the holy trinity of the study of politics Of the three ideas are arguably the hardest with which to grapple and despite a generally broad agreement concerning their fundamental importance the most often neglected Nowhere is this more evident than in the study of urban politics and urban political development The essays in How Ideas Shape Urban Political Development argue that ideas have been the real drivers behind urban political development and offer as evidence national and international examples some unique to specific cities regions and countries and some of global impact Within the United States contributors examine the idea of blight and how it became a powerful metaphor in city planning the identification of racially defined spaces especially black cities and city neighborhoods as specific targets of neoliberal disciplinary practices the paradox of members of Congress who were active supporters of civil rights legislation in the 1950s and 1960s but enjoyed the support of big city political machines that were hardly liberal when it came to questions of race in their home districts and the intersection of national education policy local school politics and the politics of immigration Essays compare the ways in which national urban policies have taken different shapes in countries similar to the United States namely Canada and the United Kingdom The volume also presents case studies of city based political development in Chile China India and Africa areas of the world that have experienced a more recent form of urbanization that feature deep and intimate ties and similarities to urban political development in the Global North but which have occurred on a broader scale Contributors Daniel B. Changing Meanings of Citizenship in

Modern China Merle Goldman, Elizabeth J. Perry, 2002-06-30 This collection of essays addresses the meaning and practice of political citizenship in China over the past century raising the question of whether reform initiatives in citizenship imply movement toward increased democratization After slow but steady moves toward a new conception of citizenship before 1949 there was a nearly complete reversal during the Mao regime with a gradual reemergence beginning in the Deng era of concerns with the political rights as well as the duties of citizens The distinguished contributors to this volume address how citizenship has been understood in China from the late imperial era to the present day the processes by which citizenship has been fostered or undermined the influence of the government the different development of citizenship in mainland China and Taiwan and the prospects of strengthening citizens rights in contemporary China Valuable for its century long perspective and for placing the historical patterns of Chinese citizenship within the context of European and American experiences Changing Meanings of Citizenship in Modern China investigates a critical issue for contemporary Chinese society

Strategies of Urban Development in China's Reforms Lan-Chih Po, 2001      Extending Citizenship, Reconfiguring States Michael P. Hanagan, Charles Tilly, 1999 Citizenship has come under intense discussion recently because of threats to welfare and shifting immigration policies The European Union has opened transnational citizenship rights and fledgling democracies throughout the world are struggling to establish their own versions of citizenship Extending Citizenship Reconfiguring States connects all these current discussions and places them in historical perspective The book presents a thematically unified analysis of changing citizenship practices over two centuries_ from the eve of the French Revolution to contemporary China Showing how rights emerge with the appearance of new social groups and the reconfiguration of states the authors identify conditions under which rights and citizenship expand as new groups develop within consolidated states as well as how rights and citizenship emerge within fragmented states with cross cutting legal jurisdictions      Stanford Journal of International Law , 2003      New Democratic Trends in China? Jude Howell, 2006      Resource Management, Urbanization and Governance in Hong Kong and the Zhujiang Delta Kwan Yiu Wong, Jianfa Shen, 2002 The Zhujiang Delta region is the natural hinterland of Hong Kong It has experienced astonishing growth since 1978 after the introduction of economic reforms and the open policy in China Its subsequent development is in many ways closely related with that of Hong Kong In fact far reaching economic integration has taken place between Hong Kong and the Zhujiang Delta After China's entry to the WTO on December 11 2001 such economic integration will be further strengthened A world class city region is being formed around the Hong Kong and Zhujiang Delta area Pressing issues and concerns of effective resource management governance and sustainability are emerging due to accelerated industrialization urbanization globalization and regional integration They will affect the future development and prosperity of the region The book is a collective effort by leading scholars from Hong Kong Mainland China USA and Germany and offers updated and in depth analyses of economic integration migration urbanization regional development resource management and urban regional governance in the Hong Kong Zhujiang Delta region in the context of development and transformation of Hong Kong and Mainland China JCPS,2000 The Making of China's Exchange Rate Policy Leong H. Liew,Harry X. Wu,2007 This book examines the major economic and political factors influencing China's exchange rate policies from the foundation of the People's Republic to the present It considers how national economic and political priorities international influences domestic institutional interests and the new constraints imposed by China's rapidly globalising post Mao economy determine exchange rate policy The authors argue that China's exchange rate decisions were not made simply in response to external pressures rather that they were formed on the basis of domestic assessments of domestic circumstances to serve domestic interests They go on to illustrate that such decisions are made on the basis of what policymakers perceive are the nation's best interests and thus constitute dynamic interplay between national priorities and the interests of institutional and non institutional actors in the policy arena Fulfilling the demand for further research on how China formulates exchange rate policy this book will strongly appeal to a wide ranging audience including students academics and researchers with an interest in political economy Asian studies international relations comparative politics international business and international economics and finance Policymakers and bankers will also find much to interest them in this book Wideangle Discussion Guide ,2003 Guide to the videos from the first year of the series Greetings from Grozny Soul of India Cause for murder The empty ATM and To have and have not Includes description and content listing for each video director's notes an article by an expert on each country highlighted and discussion questions Constructing China's Jerusalem Nanlai Cao,2011 This book depicts the revival of Protestant Christianity among diverse groups of people in the commercially prosperous coastal city of Wenzhou and shows how resurgent and innovated Christian beliefs and practices in the reform era reveal emerging patterns of power formation place making and morality building in the context of a market oriented modernizing China Governing China's Population Susan Greenhalgh,Edwin A. Winckler,2005 China's giant project in social engineering has drawn worldwide attention both because of its coercive enforcement of strict birth limits and because of the striking changes that have occurred in China's population one of the fastest fertility declines in modern history and a gender gap among infants that is the highest in the world These changes have contributed to an imminent crisis of social security for a rapidly aging population provoking concern in China and abroad What political processes underlie these population shifts What is the political significance of population policy for the PRC regime the Chinese people and China's place in the world The book documents the gradual governmentalization of China's population after 1949 a remarkable buildup of capacity for governance by the regime the professions and individuals Since the turn of the millennium the regime has initiated a drastic shift from hard Leninist methods of birth planning toward soft neoliberal approaches involving indirect regulation by the state and self regulation by citizens themselves Population policy once a lagging sector in China's transition from communism is now helping lead the country toward more modern and internationally accepted forms of governance

Governing China's Population tells the story of these shifts from the perspectives of both regime and society based on internal documents long term fieldwork and interviews with a wide range of actors policymakers and implementers propagandists and critics compliers and resisters This study also illuminates the far reaching consequences for China's society and politics of deep state intrusion in individual reproduction Like Mao's Great Leap Forward Deng's one child policy has created vast social suffering and human trauma Yet power over population has also been positive and productive promoting China's global rise by creating new kinds of quality persons equipped to succeed in the world economy Politically the PRC's population project has strengthened the regime and created a whole new field of biopolitics centering on the production and cultivation of life itself Drawing on approaches from political science and anthropology that are rarely combined this book develops a new kind of interdisciplinary inquiry that expands the domain of the political in provocative ways The book provides fresh answers to broad questions about China's Leninist transition regime capacity science and democracy and the changing shape of Chinese modernity
