Continental Divides Revisioning American Literature:

Continental Divides Anne E. Goldman, 2000 Continental Divides A. Goldman, 2000-10-19 The book calls for a new iconography of region that unseats New England's status as cultural center of the United States and originary metaphor for national identity. No single territorial or political axis can adequately describe the complex regional relationships that comprise the nation. Goldman argues. The essays in this volume juxtapose African American, Mexican American, and Anglo American fictions produced in the wake of both the Civil War and the U.S.-Mexican War, contiguous national conflicts that remain segregated in critical practice. At once comparative and intertextual, the readings in this study redefine western literature in its relation to other U.S. regional literary formations. Goldman's arguments question critical sectionalism as extensively as they do regional divisions by blurring generic distinctions, by reading across literary periods, and by juxtaposing writers who explore the same set of social issues during the same historical moment but who are conventionally located in separate literary traditions: sentimental literature, the African American novel, literary modernism, early Mexican fiction.

Fictions of Western American Domesticity Amanda J. Zink, 2018-06 This work provides a compelling explanation of something that has bedeviled a number of feminist scholars: Why did popular authors like Edna Ferber continue to write conventional fiction while living lives that were far from conventional? Amanda J. Zink argues that white writers like Ferber and Willa Cather avoided the subject of their own domestic labor by writing about the performance of domestic labor by others, showing that American print culture, both in novels and through advertisements, moved away from portraying women as angels in the house and instead sought to persuade other women to be angels in their houses. Zink further explores lesser-known works such as Mexican American cookbooks and essays in Indian boarding school magazines to show how women writers dialoging domesticity exemplify the cross-cultural encounters between colonial domesticity and sovereign domesticity. By situating these interpretations of literature within their historical contexts, Zink shows how these writers championed and challenged the ideology of domesticity.

A Companion to the Regional Literatures of America Charles L. Crow, 2008-04-15 The Blackwell Companion to American Regional Literature is the most comprehensive resource yet published for study of this popular field. The most inclusive survey yet published of American regional literature, it represents a wide variety of theoretical and historical approaches. Surveys the literature of specific regions from California to New England and from Alaska to Hawaii. Discusses authors and groups who have been important in defining regional American literature.

A History of California Literature Blake Allmendinger, 2015-05-19 This History explores the historical periods, literary genres, and cultural movements of California.

Messy Beginnings Malini Johar Schueller, Edward Watts, 2003 When exploring the links between America and post-colonialism, scholars tend to think either in terms of contemporary multiculturalism or of imperialism since 1898. This book challenges the idea of early America's immunity from issues of imperialism.

Western American Literature, 2009 Manifesting America Mark Rifkin, 2012-12-01 Manifesting

America explores how Native American and Mexican American writers use various kinds of nonfiction to challenge the ideology of manifest destiny

Imagining the African American West Blake Allmendinger, 2005-01-01 The literature of the African American West is the last racial discourse of the region that remains unexplored Blake Allmendinger addresses this void in literary and cultural studies with Imagining the African American West the first comprehensive study of African American literature on the early frontier and in the modern urban American West Allmendinger charts the terrain of African American literature in the West through his exploration of novels histories autobiographies science fiction mysteries formula westerns melodramas experimental theater and political essays as well as rap music and film He examines the histories of James P Beckwourth and Oscar Micheaux slavery the Civil War and the significance of the American frontier to blacks and the Harlem Renaissance the literature of urban unrest rap music black noir and African American writers including Toni Morrison and Walter Mosley His study utilizes not only the works of well known African American writers but also some obscure and neglected works out of print books and unpublished manuscripts in library archives Much of the scholarly neglect of the Black West can be blamed on how the American West has been imagined constructed and framed in scholarship to date In his study Allmendinger provides the appropriate theoretical cultural and historical contexts for understanding the literature and suggests new directions for the future of black western literature

Crisscrossing Borders in Literature of the American West Reginald Dyck, Cheli Reutter, Cheli Ruetter, 2009-02-15 In one consequential volume Crisscrossing Borders in Literature of the American West presents the cross section of a fast changing and greatly expanded field Through interdisciplinary essays this volume on the post national West challenges the idea of a unified national story sustained by strategic exclusions Contributors analyze the economic and environmental exploitation depicted in working class Western literature emphasize the transnational by approaching both the North South and cross Atlantic axes grapple with the role of Mormons and dissect the new masculinity of Silicon Gunslingers Each essay successfully and compellingly models a new and fruitful way of engaging the West

The End of Eden Terry Beers, 2018-05-31 The story of the Joad family's journey from their ravaged farm in dustbowl Oklahoma to the storied paradise of California helped inform a nation about the brutality poverty and vicious competition among fellow immigrants desperate for work But Steinbeck is only one successor to a rich and esteemed literary tradition in California Drawing on history and cultural theory The End of Eden traces the rise of the California social novel its embrace of the agrarian dream and its ambivalence about technology and the development it enables It relies on various cultural conceptions of space among them the American Public Land Survey the source of the grid allotments shaping homestead claims Mexican era dise os and Native American traditions that defined a fluid relationship between human beings and the land This animation of four California social novels of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries demonstrates how conflicts over space and place signify cultural conflict It is deeply informed by the author's understanding of historical land issues The works include Joaquin Miller's Unwritten History Life Amongst the Modocs Helen Hunt Jackson's Ramona Frank Norris The Octopus and Mary Austin's The Ford Miller's Unwritten History Life Amongst the Modocs and Jackson's Ramona examine the tragic but inevitable consequences for native people of making space inhabited already by Native American and Hispanic populations safe for Americans who pursue the agrarian dream without regard to its effects upon those who claim prior tenure on the land Norris The Octopus and Austin's The Ford examine the murkier story of trying to preserve or to reclaim the agrarian dream when confronted by the unchecked materialist interests of American capitalism A wide reaching interdisciplinary approach to various cultural conceptions of space The End of Eden provides a crucial understanding of the conflicts depicted in social novels that lament the ways in which land is allocated and developed the ways in which American agrarianism and its promise of local sustainable land use is undermined and how it applies to contemporary California In an era where California confronts yet again the complicated patterns of land use fracking water use and water rights coastal regulation and management and agribusiness this groundbreaking work provides an ever relevant context
