

Three contrasting approaches to safety

Ultra adaptive Embracing risk

Context: Taking risks is the essence of the profession:

Deep sea fishing, military in war time, drilling industry, rare cancer, treatment of trauma.

Safety model: Power to experts to rely on personal resilience, expertise and technology to survive and prosper in adverse conditions.

Training through peer-to-peer learning shadowing, acquiring professional experience, knowing one's own limitations.

Priority to adaptation and recovery strategies

High reliability Managing risk

Context: Risk is not sought out but is inherent in the profession:

Marine, shipping, oil industry, fire-fighters, elective surgery.

Safety model: Power to the group to organise itself, provide mutual protection, apply procedures, adapt, and make sense of the environment.

Training in teams to prepare and rehearse flexible routines for the management of hazards.

Priority to procedures and adaptation strategies

Ultra safe Avoiding risk

Context: Risk is excluded as far as possible: Civil aviation, nuclear industry, public transport, food industry, medical laboratory, blood transfusion.

Safety model: Power to regulators and supervision of the system to avoid exposing front-line actors to unnecessary risks.

Training in teams to apply procedures for both routine operations and emergencies.

Health, Hazards and Public Debate Carlos Dora, 2006 This publication is based on research into the strategies used to communicate information to the public about the risks of BSE bovine spongiform encephalopathy and CJD Creutzfeldt Jakob disease in four European countries the UK Germany Italy and Finland between 1985 and 2000 through political means and health information systems as well as through mass media reporting of the issue It considers the lessons to be learned from the BSE CJD crisis given the need for timely and effective communication on real and perceived risks in such situations both to prevent and to respond to food and environmental health scares The book approaches the debate about effective risk communication as an evolving and interactive process between decision makers and their publics and emphasises the importance of creating mechanisms for interaction at all stages of policy making Using a range of qualitative and quantitative methods the research also looks at the way people construct their perceptions about risk and how they make decisions on risk avoidance Strategic Issues at the Dawn of a New Millennium ,1999 Trends in Learning Research Samuel N. Hogan,2006 Learning as used here refers to concerted activity that increases the capacity and willingness of individuals groups organisations and communities to acquire and productively apply new knowledge and skills to grow and mature and to adapt successfully to changes and challenges Such learning empowers individuals and organisations to make wise choices solve problems and break new ground In particular it is sustainable it is a lifelong renewable process for people and for the institutions that serves people Learning certainly includes academic studies and occupational training through high school and beyond but also encompasses the physical cognitive emotional and social development of children in the earliest years of their lives This book presents new research in this explosive field
