Knox,2009-12-30 A passage from the book At the Rocky Mountains Sentiment of the People Firing the Southern Heart A Midwinter Journey across the Plains An Editor's Opinion Election in Missouri The North springing to Arms An amusing Arrest Off for the Field Final Instructions Niagara Curiosities of Banking Arrival at the Seat of War I passed the summer and autumn of 1860 in the Rocky Mountain Gold Region At that time the population of the young Territory was composed of emigrants from Northern and Southern States those from the colder regions being in the majority When the Presidential election took place there was much angry discussion of the great questions of the day and there were threats of violence on the part of the friends of the institution The residents of the Gold Region were unable to cast their votes for the men of their choice but their anxiety to know the result was very great When it was announced that the Republican candidate had triumphed there were speedy signs of discontent Some of the more impulsive Southerners departed at once for their native States predicting a separation of Dixie from the North before the end of the year Some went to New Mexico and others to Texas while many remained to press their favorite theories upon their neighbors The friends of the Union were slow to believe that any serious difficulty would take place Long after the secession of South Carolina they were confident our differences could be healed without an appeal to arms
