Etiology Frederick F. Becker,1975 Cancer. A Comprehensive Treatise Frederick Becker,2012-12-06 This series of books attempts to present in a comprehensive manner the field of oncology divided into three major areas etiology biology and therapy These books should serve as landmarks in the rapidly expanding experimental and clinical universe of this field To some they will be introductory to others a summary for all critical comments on the future of research In recognition of the difficulties inherent in attempting to pause and reflect while experimental data emerge with ever increasing rapidity the presentations take the form of overviews rather than reviews Where possible an historical perspective on observations and experimentation which led to our present understanding is presented the state of the art in technique and approach is reviewed and the gaps in knowledge and in technique are indicated The aim throughout is integration using the findings from one approach for comparison with others The tremendous expansion of interest in oncology as a medical biological discipline stimulated the publication of these volumes This expansion well warranted in terms of the impact of oncology on human morbidity has been characterized by at least three phenomena First there has been an enormous increase in money and manpower devoted to the investigation and treatment of malignancy That the research has become more and more directed or program oriented signals the interest of those beyond the scientific community in the management of the eHort Second increasing numbers of students are entering the field of oncology as their major training program *Cancer.
