Camping And Tramping With President Roosevelt:

Camping and Tramping with Roosevelt John Burroughs, 2012-06-19 President Theodore Roosevelt's love of natural history is celebrated in two sketches written by renowned naturalist John Burroughs. The friends shared a two week trip to Yellowstone in the spring of 1903 in order to observe the wildlife and geologic wonders of America's first national park. The desire was to commune with nature not to hunt. I will not fire a gun in the Park then I shall have no explanations to make. President Roosevelt said. While they had guides the president was unaccompanied by secret service, personal physician or secretaries and remarkably took an 18 mile trek through hard country completely by himself on one occasion. He came back as fresh as when he started. Camping and Tramping with President Roosevelt John Burroughs, 1907 Camping and Tramping with President Roosevelt John Burroughs, 2015-09-12 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it. The President himself, having the absolute leisure and peace of the White House, wrote his account of the trip nearly two years ago. But with the stress and strain of my life at Slabside, administering the affairs of so many of the wild creatures of the woods about me, I have not till this blessed season, fall of 1905, found the time to put on record an account of the most interesting thing I saw in that wonderful land, which of course was the President himself. When I accepted his invitation, I was well aware that during the journey I should be in a storm, most of the time, which is not always a pleasant prospect to a man of my habits and disposition. The President himself is a good deal of a storm, a man of such abounding energy and ceaseless activity that he sets everything in motion around him wherever he goes. But I knew he would be pretty well occupied on his way to the Park in speaking to eager throngs and in receiving personal and political homage in the towns and cities we were to pass through. But when all this was over and I found myself with him in the wilderness of the Park with only the superintendent and a few attendants to help take up his tremendous personal impact how was it likely to fare with a non strenuous person like myself I asked I had visions of snow six and seven feet deep where traveling could be done only upon snow shoes and I had never had the things on my feet in my life If the infernal fires beneath that keep the pot boiling so furiously in the Park should melt the snows I could see the party tearing along on horseback at a wolf hunt pace over a rough country and as I had not been on a horse's back since the President was born how would it be likely to fare with me then I had known the President several years before he became famous and we had had some correspondence on subjects of natural history His interest in such themes is always very fresh and keen and the main motive of his visit to the Park at this time was to see and study in its semi-domesticated condition the great game which he had so often hunted during his ranch days and he was kind enough to think it would be an additional pleasure to see it with a nature lover like myself For my own part I knew nothing about big game but I knew there was no man in the country with whom I should so like to see it as Roosevelt Some of our newspapers reported that the President intended to hunt in the Park A woman in Vermont wrote me to protest against the hunting and hoped I would teach the President to love the animals as much as I did as if he did not love them much more because his love is founded upon knowledge and because they had been a part of his life She did not know that I was then cherishing the secret hope that I might be allowed to shoot a cougar or bobcat but this fun did not come to me The President said I will not fire a gun in the Park then I shall have no explanation to make Yet once I did hear him say in the wilderness I feel as if I ought to keep the camp in meat I always have I regretted that he could not do so on this occasion

Camping and Tramping with Roosevelt John Burroughs, 2015-01-12 This little volume really needs no introduction the two sketches of which it is made explain and I hope justify themselves But there is one phase of the President's many sided character upon which I should like to lay especial emphasis namely his natural history bent and knowledge Amid all his absorbing interests and masterful activities in other fields his interest and his authority in practical natural history are by no means the least

Camping Tramping John Burroughs, 2015-07-17 Excerpt from Camping Tramping With Roosevelt This little volume really needs no introduction the two sketches of which it is made explain and I hope justify themselves But there is one phase of the President's many sided character upon which I should like to lay especial emphasis namely his natural history bent and knowledge Amid all his absorbing interests and masterful activities in other fields his interest and his authority in practical natural history are by no means the least I long ago had very direct proof Of this statement In some

Of my English sketches following a Visit to that island in 1882 I had rather by implication than by positive statement inclined to the opinion that the European forms of animal life were as a rule larger and more hardy and prolific than the corresponding American forms. Camping with President Roosevelt John Burroughs, 2016-12-05 Camping With President Roosevelt is an account of the author's trip to Yellowstone Park with former American president Theodore Roosevelt in 1903. A fascinating and insightful story interspersed with examples of beautiful nature writing, this is a volume not to be missed by fans and collectors of Burroughs' wonderful writing. Contents include: A Storm Centre, The President's Interest In Natural History, His Love Of Animals, Meeting The People, A Pretty Incident, Ranch Life, The Making Of Him, Old Neighbors, Bad Lands And Bad Men, The President's Cordiality, etc. John Burroughs 1837-1921 was an American naturalist, essayist, and active member of the U.S. conservation movement. Burroughs' work was incredibly popular during his lifetime, and his legacy has lived on in the form of twelve U.S. Schools named after him, Burroughs Mountain, and the John Burroughs Association, which publicly recognizes well-written and illustrated natural history publications. Many vintage books such as this are becoming increasingly scarce and expensive. We are republishing this volume now in an affordable, modern, high-quality edition, complete with a specially commissioned new biography of the author.

Warren, 2010-02-25 This study situates John Burroughs together with John Muir and Theodore Roosevelt as one of a trinity of thinkers who between the Civil War and World War I defined and secured a place for nature in mainstream American culture Though not as well known today Burroughs was the most popular American nature writer of his time Prolific and consistent he published scores of essays in influential large circulation magazines and was often compared to Thoreau Unlike Thoreau however whose reputation grew posthumously Burroughs was a celebrity during his lifetime he wrote more than thirty books enjoyed a continual high level of visibility and saw his work taught widely in public schools James Perrin Warren shows how Burroughs helped guide urban and suburban middle class readers back to nature during a time of intense industrialization and urbanization Warren discusses Burroughs's connections not only to Muir and Roosevelt but also to his forebears

Emerson Thoreau and Whitman By tracing the complex philosophical creative and temperamental lineage of these six giants Warren shows how in their friendships and rivalries Burroughs Muir and Roosevelt made the high literary romanticism of Emerson Thoreau and Whitman relevant to late nineteenth and early twentieth century Americans At the same time Warren offers insights into the rise of the nature essay as a genre the role of popular magazines as shapers and conveyors of public values and the dynamism of place in terms of such opposed concepts as retreat and engagement nature and culture and wilderness and civilization Because Warren draws on Burroughs s personal critical and philosophical writings as well as his better known narrative essays readers will come away with a more informed sense of Burroughs as a literary naturalist and a major early practitioner of ecocriticism John Burroughs and the Place of Nature helps extend the map of America s cultural landscape during the period 1870 1920 by recovering an unfairly neglected practitioner of one of his era s most effective forces for change nature writing
