Structure of Canadian Government

Introduction

- The structure of government is divided into two axes; (1) levels of government: federal and provincial; and (2) branches of government: legislative, executive, and judicial.
- Each level has exclusive regulatory authority with respect to specific matters outlined in the Constitution Act of 1867.
- Each branch of government performs distinct functions.
- Branches of government exist in complex relationships and work as a system organized by the principles of popular sovereignty, the rule of law, constitutionalism, government accountability and others.
- The system is based on the idea of popular sovereignty and limited government. This means that there have to be mechanisms that provide a check against arbitrary exercise of power and require ultimate accountability of the government to the people. This is
