Canadian Housing Policies (1935-1980) Albert Rose,1980 Canadian Housing Policies (1935-1980) Albert Rose,1980 Social Policy and Practice in Canada Alvin Finkel,2006-04-17 Social Policy and Practice in Canada A History traces the history of social policy in Canada from the period of First Nations control to the present day exploring the various ways in which residents of the area known today as Canada have organized themselves to deal with or to ignore the needs of the ill the poor the elderly and the young This book is the first synthesis on social policy in Canada to provide a critical perspective on the evolution of social policy in the country While earlier work has treated each new social program as a major advance and reacted with shock to neoliberalism s attack on social programs Alvin Finkel demonstrates that right wing and left wing forces have always battled to shape social policy in Canada He argues that the notion of a welfare state consensus in the period after 1945 is misleading and that the social programs developed before the neoliberal counteroffensive were far less radical than they are sometimes depicted Social Policy and Practice in Canada A History begins by exploring the non state mechanisms employed by First Nations to insure the well being of their members It then deals with the role of the Church in New France and of voluntary organizations in British North America in helping the unfortunate After examining why voluntary organizations gradually gave way to state controlled programs the book assesses the evolution of social policy in Canada in a variety of areas including health care treatment of the elderly child care housing and poverty Canadian Housing Policies Albert Rose,University of Guelph. housing required approval by a referendum in which only the city's property owners could vote. This rule deprived close to half the city's voters and virtually everyone who might qualify to live in public housing of the right to vote. Over decades that barrier to democracy was whittled away. An NDP provincial government elected in 1969 added 11 144 units of public housing to the existing 568 units. Today public housing is once more under attack. Rather being treated as valued public assets they are considered embarrassing encumbrances that should be sold as part of a process of turning public housing over to the private sector. The struggle to protect and expand the provision of non profit housing is undermined by the rupture in political memory of the long struggle to build public housing and the current political situation. Canadian Housing

International Handbook of Housing Policies and Practices Willem Van Vliet, 1990-10-24 This important new source provides greater insight into and awareness of housing experiences in other societies allowing for a more informed assessment of our own national experiences and priorities. This unique compilation points to the value of cross national work when dealing with these complex issues. Choice Housing issues and policy problems are both universal in scope and at the same time inherently specific to a given time and place. All countries are wrestling with their own housing problems and with the everyday mechanics of housing supply and regulation. Specific problems vary immensely from country to country and the policy instruments and institutions chosen to address those problems vary. As the chapters in this volume make clear definitions of housing problems and approaches to housing policies are firmly embedded in particular national and cultural contexts. A long awaited signal publication this book is an important new source of analyses and information necessary to understand these contexts. It also is a major work of reference that provides the raw materials for undertaking comparative studies of housing issues and policy problems. The contributors are renowned authorities in the field who demonstrate how housing is worldwide an integral component of a nation's financial system its social structure and its political and policy making apparatus. Because this book provides greater insight in and awareness of experiences in other societies it allows for a more informed assessment of our own national experiences and priorities. As the contributors make clear there are no complete or simple solutions to contemporary housing problems. This unique compilation points to the value of cross national work when dealing with these complex issues. It will be essential reading for scholars and policymakers alike who are concerned with housing issues. How Ottawa Spends, 2013-2014 Christopher Stoney, G. Bruce Doern, 2013-11-29 A critical examination of the Harper Government at the mid point of the electoral cycle set in the context of its long term plans beyond the next federal election.

The History of Canada's Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP) Dale Falkenhagen, 2001 The Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program RRAP was announced by the Government of Canada in the spring of 1973 and became operational the following year. It came about because of the dual recognition that the existing housing stock represented an important national asset that needed to be preserved and that a significant portion of this stock was substandard and occupied by households unable to afford necessary repairs Over the following 26 years more than 600 000 dwellings mostly comprised of self contained homeowner and rental units but also a good number of beds in hostels dormitories special care facilities and rooming houses were repaired with RRAP assistance across all regions and areas of the country During this time RRAP demonstrated great versatility in adapting to the priorities of the day in achieving a broad range of public objectives from improving the housing conditions of low income Canadians neighbourhood improvement and employment generation to meeting the special needs of persons with disabilities and the homeless This history is divided into two main parts The first recounts the evolution of RRAP from its inception to the present day The second part explores the evolution of critical aspects of RRAP related to need its design management and accomplishments and concludes with an epilogue which reviews reasons for RRAP s durability and explores the need for targeted housing rehabilitation programs in the future Canadiana ,1981-06 Housing Policy Debate ,2003 Canadian Social Policy Shankar A.

Yelaja,1987-10-19 The second edition of Canadian Social Policy contains eighteen essays written by eminent academicians and policy makers including new essays on federal provincial issues and social policy in Quebec The book is divided into four section 1 the development of social policy in Canada 2 the current major issues in Canadian social policy development in such areas as income security health policy housing immigration inflation and unemployment 3 the process of social policy formulation within the Canadian context and 4 the evaluation of Canadian social welfare policy and services All articles have been revised and updated in order to provide a broad perspective on social policy development and also to help stimulate discussion and debate on major social welfare problems confronted by Canadian society in the 1980s and beyond

Canadian Architectural Archives,Michael McMordie,Geoffrey Simmins,1995 This publication part of the ongoing mandate of the Canadian Architectural Archives to examine the characteristics of Canadian architecture as reflected in the collections of the University of Calgary Library examines twelve architect created houses designed between the 1940s and the 1980s for several distinct regions of Canada. The architects chosen number among the most prolific and best known in Canada who were working during this period including Raymond T Affleck, Raymond Moriyama, Arthur Erickson, Douglas Cardinal, John B. Parkin Associates, and Patkau Architects. Other architects with perhaps a more regional reputation have also been included such as the Vancouver based firm of McCarter Nairne, Calgary's Jack Long, and Edmonton's Peter Hemingway. Apart from the documentation of the twelve houses, drawings and photos, there are interpretative essays on each. A co-authored introductory essay explores several related themes: modernity, the contemporary house, approaches to landscape, and the role of drawings in contemporary practice.
