Canberra In Colour:

Canberra in Colour Rhys Roberts, 1970-01-01 Magnificent Australia in Colour Owen W. Hoole, 1973 Different White People Deborah Wilson, 2015-07-01

Different White People presents a trilogy of remarkable stories about campaigns for Aboriginal rights. But the most curious thing about this book is that the central characters in this book are not Aborigines. Some of the different white people you will meet in these pages are well known Australians but many are not. But they all had one crucial common characteristic: a single-minded determination to support and protect the rights of Aboriginal people. This book is a journey through three remote regions of Australia. It begins in 1946 as Aboriginal pastoral workers walk away from oppressive conditions to make their famous stand in the Pilbara in Western Australia. The second lesser-known story unfolds in Central Australia when Britain and Australia collaborate to conduct their missile and nuclear weapons programs in Aboriginal country. And the final section of this book features a landmark action in the Northern Territory: Aboriginal workers and their families walked away from white bosses in the now famous Gurindji walk off in 1966. And amidst these fascinating episodes in Australia's history was an eclectic group of people working tirelessly to protect and support Aboriginal people and Aboriginal rights. They were The Different White People.

City Tourism Robert Maitland, Brent W. Ritchie, 2009

Capital city status attracts and drives tourism by enhancing a city's appeal to the tourist and its international standing. With a focus on city tourism themes, this book examines subjects including the identity of a city in a tourism context and practical matters such as promoting the city as a product. By examining tourist activities in national capitals, the book addresses issues in capital city development as tourist destinations with a broad international approach and case studies on major tourist cities.

Film As Ethnography Peter Ian Crawford, David Turton, 1992-11-15

This work examines the reasons why anthropologists have not used the camera as a research instrument or film as a means of communicating ethnographic knowledge. It suggests that images and words in this discipline operate on different logical levels that they are hierarchically related, that whereas writings may encompass the images produced by film, the inverse of this cannot be true. The author argues for this position further by suggesting that the visual is to the written mode as thin description giving a record of the form of behaviour is to thick description giving an account of meaning.

The Mineral Industry of New South Wales Geological Survey of New South Wales, Ernest Clayton Andrews, 1928 Building, Lighting and Engineering, 1929 The Australian People James Jupp, 2001-10

Australia is one of the most ethnically diverse societies in the world today. From its ancient indigenous origins to British colonisation followed by waves of European then international migration in the twentieth century, the island continent is home to people from all over the globe. Each new wave of settlers has had a profound impact on Australian society and culture. The Australian People documents the dramatic history of Australian settlement and describes the rich ethnic and cultural inheritance of the nation through the contributions of its people. It is one of the largest reference works of its kind with approximately 250 expert contributors and almost one million words.
