Cancer Chemotherapy And Biological Response Modifiers:

Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers Annual Herbert Michael Pinedo, Dan L.. Longo, Bruce A.. Chabner, 1987 In its ninth year the Cancer Chemotherapy Annual series has been renamed reformatted and expanded to include a section on biological response modifiers It is and will remain the only medium for oncologists to keep pace with the many thousands of articles published in their field The international board of some seventy contributors now also includes experts in biological therapeutics who have evaluated their segment of the international medical literature The editors H M Pinedo and B A Chabner have secured the assistance of D L Longo who qualifies as the director of the Biological Response Modifiers Program of the National Cancer Institute in Frederick MD USA Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers H. M. Pinedo, D. L. Longo, B. A. Chabner, 1997 Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers has provided its readers with a comprehensive definitive annual review of the literature in the fields of cancer biology pharmacology treatment and management Its contributors are internationally renowned figures in the field of oncology This volume contains 30 chapters reviewing recent developments within specific subject areas of oncological research Having this up to date information on hand will ensure that you are well informed so you can stay at the forefront of your profession

Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers Annual 21 Giuseppe Giaccone, Richard L. Schilsky, P. Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers H. M. Pinedo, D. L. Longo, B. A. Chabner, 1999 Sondel.2003 Hardbound Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers provides its readers with a comprehensive definitive annual review of the literature in the fields of cancer biology pharmacology treatment and management Its contributors are internationally renowned figures in the field of oncology The contents of this new volume Annual 18 will again review recent developments within these subject areas ensuring that its readers are kept up to date with the latest information Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers H. M. Pinedo, D. L. Longo, B. A. Chabner, 1992-01-01 Several extremely interesting new developments have taken place in clinical cancer research in the past year Cellular pharmacology of anti neoplastic agents has continued gathering momentum More insight has been acquired into the mechanisms of drug resistance where multi drug resistance MDR is the center of interest It is important in this research to define clinical resistance at the cellular level by using tumor biopsies from patients sensitive or resistant to chemotherapy and MDR reverters The use of high dose chemotherapy as another approach to overcoming drug resistance is proving to be guite successful in lymphomas and is now being tested in chemosensitive tumors Major emphasis has been put on improving the tolerability of high dose chemotherapy G CSF and GM CSF have allowed the possibility of delivering significantly higher doses of chemotherapy achieving higher complete remission rates Several studies are also investigating the potential role of G CSF and GM CSF in myelodisplastic syndromes The finding that differentiating agents like retinoids are capable of inducing remissions in acute promyelocytic leukemia is extremely exciting Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological

Response Modifiers Annual 20 Giuseppe Giaccone, Richard L. Schilsky, P. Sondel, 2002 Combination Therapies 2 E. Garaci, Allan L. Goldstein, 2012-12-06 The 2nd International Symposium on Combination Therapies brought together several hundred of the leading researchers scientists and clinicians in this area to discuss new and emerging uses for biological response modifiers BRM s in the treatment of cancer and infectious diseases. The meeting was held during May 1 3 1992 in Acircale Sicily Italy It was hosted by Professor G Nicoletti CU of Catania and organized by the Institute for Advanced Studies in Immunology and Aging Washington D C in collaboration with the University of Rome Tor Vergata the University of Catania and The George Washington University Medical Center The synergy exhibited between BRM's and conventional therapies including bone marrow and other lymphoid cell transplants is a rapidly expanding area with significant promise for the treatment of human diseases Advances in this area of biomedicine are leading to the rapid development of new therapeutic approaches that are being applied clinically as both primary and adjuvant therapy to enhance the effectiveness of conventional treatments The 2nd International Symposium on Combination Therapy provided a setting for the exchange of new scientific information regarding the emerging uses for BRM s alone or in combination with conventional therapies The 1st International Symposium on Combination Therapies was held in 1991 in Washington D C Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers, Annual 10 Herbert M. Pinedo, Dan Louis Longo, Bruce A. Chabner, 1988 The year 1987 witnessed further steps in the transition from conventional chemotherapy to biological compounds for the treatment of cancer The possibilities of the CSFs as well as the related interleukins IL 1 and IL 3 are discussed in detail in this edition of the Annual and represent a landmark in that the major limiting toxicity of conventional chemotherapy myelosuppression may become controllable and avoidable Monoclonal antibodies and growth factor related strategies are discussed in detail in the sections on biologicals Chapters 28 34 and Steroid and Peptide hormones and growth factors Chapter 11 Highlighting the progress in the understanding and clinical application of biologicals is not intended to minimize the substantial progress made in the past year in conventional chemotherapy including expanding indications for and improved results of therapy with VP 16 Considerable progress has been made in understanding MDR 1 at the biological and clinical levels in the past year Chapter 9 whilst attention must also be drawn to the drug related chapters providing important new information

Biomedical Index to PHS-supported Research ,1990 Cumulated Index Medicus ,1991 Cancer Chemotherapy and Biological Response Modifiers Guiseppe Giaccone, Richard Schilsky, Paul Sondel, 2005-06 This 22nd Volume of CANCER CHEMOTHERAPY BIOLOGICAL RESPONSE MODIFIERS continues in the tradition of providing a timely review of progress and achievements in clinical oncology The emphasis of Annual 22 is on recent advances in the understanding of anti cancer drugs specific malignancies and biological response modifiers The section on drugs includes new chapters on the clinical use of epidermal growth factor receptor pathways and on angiogenesis pathway inhibitors These agents have moved rapidly from preclinical models to demonstrated clinical efficacy and are becoming part of comprehensive oncologic care The section on tumours provides detailed updates on past year s advances in the understanding of risk classification staging and management of common malignancies The section on biologics provides chapters on active immunotherapy through vaccines or cytokine administration exciting perspectives on the modification of T cells to recognise tumours using tumour reactive monoclonal antibody and an important review detailing the effect of conventional cancer treatment on the patient s immune system The special section within Annual 22 is devoted to recent advances in the understanding and treatment of melanoma Special detail is included regarding advances in screening prevention and predisposition for this increasingly frequent disease in addition to chapters on surgical treatment and biologic response modifiers interventions Chapters on the uses of interferon and on other cytokines combined with chemotherapy summarise how and when these approaches have proven to be useful Four chapters then review separate classes of immunologic interventions for melanoma Combination Therapies E. Garaci, Allan L. Goldstein, 2012-12-06 Over the past decade many of the key lymphokines hormones and growth factors that help regulate the immune system have been defined These molecules termed biological response modifiers BRMs have been sequenced synthesized and produced in large enough quantities to test in animals and humans resulting in the development of new approaches to the treatment of human disease in particular cancers and infectious diseases Advances in this area have also led to rethinking therapies against a range of autoimmune disorders and other diseases associated with immune and endocrine imbalances BRMs currently are being applied clinically as both primary and adjunctive therapy to enhance the effectiveness of traditional treatments by maximizing their activities and to protect critical tissues against intolerable chemotherapeutic and radiation damage Present constraints against the use of BRMs revolve around the nature of these substances in vivo where many of their actions and the majority of their interactions and synergies remain to be elucidated For example as these molecules are thought to exert their effects locally the systemic administration of lymphokines cytokines and growth factors at doses adequate to produce a wanted anti tumor effect in many instances is intolerably toxic Efforts to overcome this formidable problem have led scientists to begin to explore the transfer of genes known to encode for these molecules into cells which otherwise inadequately elicit or produce anti tumor or anti infective responses Resistance William N. Hait, 2012-12-06 Resistance to treatment represents the final common outcome for far too many patients with cancer Even our most promising new drugs fall victim to drug resistance Hormones and newer biological therapies though safe and active also lose their activity over time In this volume of Drug Resistance leading investigators in the field have reviewed the most basic mechanisms of drug resistance and have proposed ways to modulate resistance This comprehensive volume should be of value for basic and clinical scientists who wish to delve more deeply into this intriguing problem in the laboratory and devastating problem in the clinic Research Awards Index ,1982 Fundamentals of Cancer Chemotherapy Kurt Hellmann, 1987 Rationale of Biological Response Modifiers in Cancer Treatment Eiro Tsubura, Tadao Aoki, Ichirō Urushizaki, 1985 Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,1993 Biological Response
